Industrial Arbitration (Amendment) Bill: The Committee having disagreed to an amendment by the Legislative Council to strike out a clause, and having thereby restored the clause, it was competent to amend the clause so restored, 241; an amendment to add a union not provided for in the bill was obviously beyond the scope of the bill, 251-253.

Industrial Arbitration (Amendment) Bill:

Obs. as to procedure in dealing with Assembly's message, 488-491; a new clause inserted by the Assembly relating to the appointment of honorary inspectors was not an amendment within the meaning of Standing Order 205 because it introduced entirely new subject-matter and was not relevant to the subject-matter of the Council's amendment which it was sought to amend, 517.

Parliamentary Electorates and Elections (Amendment) Bill:

An amendment to provide for the appointment of two members of the Redistribution Commission out of three members specified in a previous amendment which had been defeated was out of order owing to its being the same in substance as the defeated amendment, 540; an amendment to provide for the appointment of a judge of the Supreme Court as chairman of the commission was out of order inas-
