NEW SOUTH WALES.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.

(THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

131, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 31 August, 1892.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

In accordance with former usage members of the City of Sydney Improvement Board now submit their Report for the past year, ended 31st August.

Thirty-four buildings, walls, or other structures brought under notice have been dealt with during the year, in terms of the 29th section of the Act, 42 Victoria No. 25, under which the operations of the Board are endeavoured to be conducted.

Numerous complaints are constantly made to the Board in connection with matters affecting the safety and health of inhabitants of Sydney; but in most instances the Board is powerless to act or to do more than cause a notice under the 21st clause of the City of Sydney Improvement Act to be issued; and recently an appeal was heard and dealt with of some importance as affecting a vital principle of city improvement or retrogression. Upon a narrow ribbon or strip of land, having a measurement permitting of apartments only some 7 feet in depth being built, and situated at the corner of Moore and Castlereagh Streets, the owners proposed to erect thereon a most undesirable two-storey structure, consisting of a row of five shops, as well as offices, the plans for which had been approved by the proper officer—the City Building Surveyor. During the prosecution of the appeal it again transpired that no legal authority rested with the officer mentioned, or the City Council, or the Board, or (as subsequently ascertained) with the Executive Government either, to prevent the erection of the proposed building in question, to which much public attention and interest were attracted, and which, from its intended site and frontage to a street recently widened and formed, at a cost to the citizens of about £230,000 (two hundred and thirty thousand pounds), and which proposed building was deemed to be of an exceedingly unsuitable and objectionable class of erection for such a prominent position in one of the chief centres of the city. Under the circumstances and conditions disclosed, the Board arrived at a clear and unanimous conclusion that the proposed building would have been a disfigurement and a public disgrace to the city, and members of the Board have again placed upon record their opinion, and an expression of regret that it is within the power of any person, without let or hindrance, to commit, within the metropolis, such a lamentable outrage upon architectural taste as that attempted—the erection of the building having since been actually commenced—or by such individual action to spoil the appearance of or thus deteriorate the value of property in any neighbourhood.

Upon this subject it may not be out of place to refer more particularly to the Third Annual Report of the Board, dated 31st August, 1882, ten years ago, or to quote from its contents the following passages:—

The members of the Board also desire to bring under special notice the great want of any effective supervision to regulate the nature and class of buildings permissible in certain streets. At present, so long as a building is not wholly constructed of wood, and the walls are of a certain thickness, it is in the power of any person to erect a most objectionable brick structure, uncemented and unpointed, adjoining or in close proximity to buildings of a far superior class, or in a neighbourhood where the remainder of the buildings are more in conformity with architectural symmetry. Instances of this state of things are unfortunately most numerous throughout the city. The

The class of buildings referred to being but recently erected cannot be interfered with, under the present law, until they become, in course of time, sufficiently old and decayed to be positively dangerous; for although they are in reality offences against architectural taste, and owners of adjacent premises have good grounds for complaint as to the injustice they are subjected to in having their properties thus depreciated in value through the building of the undesirable tenements in question in such close proximity to them, they cannot be dealt with as public nuisances for many years to come.

The members of the Board consider that if it were compulsory for designs of buildings to be submitted to some body of fully competent men capable of carrying out the duty indicated, and that a provision existed to regulate the class of buildings that should be permitted in certain localities, as well as to secure some uniformity of design, a most marked improvement in the general appearance of the city would thus ere long be brought about, in lieu of the present unsatisfactory state of things being perpetuated.

Another matter calling for action, and one well worthy of attention, is noticeable in the hideous awnings and verandahs that disfigure the principal streets of Sydney, and which are without doubt a standing disgrace to the city and the cause of much surprise to strangers visiting this the capital of the Australian colonies.

One of the first reforms endeavoured to be carried out by the Board, shortly after its appointment, was an attempt to have some of the worst of these nuisances immediately removed, with a view to the ultimate demolition of the remainder and the introduction of a more desirable standard to be complied with in the future; but the efforts put forth to effect these, as well as other improvements, have been frustrated by the Board not having the power, which it is believed it was intended they should possess, of exercising a control over such things.

Quite lately Board members considered it to be their duty to wait specially upon the Honorable the Acting Colonial Secretary to represent the foregoing facts, and to once more endeavour to impress upon the Government the necessity for an amendment of the City of Sydney Improvement Act. This was done, and in reply, Mr. Acting-Secretary Suttor stated that a Bill for the purpose was already in the hands of a member of the Government and that immediate attention would be given to it. Members of the Board again hope this will soon be accomplished, and that the very requisite alteration in the law bearing upon these matters will be made without much further delay.

Having regard to what has already been urged in the twelve preceding Annual Reports and otherwise, it seems superfluous to add much more; but in view of the terrible cholera scourge now visiting cities in other parts of the world, Board members wish to repeat what they have previously and frequently pointed out, viz., that the City Improvement Act is one which the Legislature of this Colony evidently intended should regulate (as its preamble clearly shows), and place under wise control, not alone architectural or constructive conditions concerning the safety or otherwise of buildings, but also those relating to the safety and health of the citizens, and as affecting sanitary considerations.

In taking precautions to guard against the introduction of disease from abroad, it would be well, it is firmly believed, not to overlook the defect known to exist in the Act referred to, which according to legal interpretation prevents the efficient dealing with, or supervision of, buildings not necessarily both constructively "ruinous and dangerous," but which from some ascertainable cause may be found to be injurious to health, and thus a source of grave danger to the occupants or the public. So far back as 1880, in their First Report, the Board asked for the enlargement of the term "dangerous to the public," so as to make it include the very important phase of "danger from insanitary causes," which danger has frequently come under the notice of members when making their inspections of various premises from time to time, when in a large number of buildings standing, it was observed that the laws of health and decency were grossly violated.

If proper authority had been conferred upon the Board to initiate and give due effect to the much-needed measures which the City of Sydney Improvement Act undoubtedly contemplated that members were meant to carry out, as well as others mentioned, and which the knowledge gained by research, observation, and experience, has taught to be salutary and useful, instead of Board members being fettered and impeded by what can reasonably be regarded in no other light than as obstacles and hindrances created by the numerous admitted defects and deficiencies of the present Act, it is considered, for the reasons stated, that there is a large quantity of useful and necessary work in the city, in the several directions fully and frequently set forth, which should receive attention by them, or some body of men qualified to undertake such duties, provided they be placed in a position to efficiently fulfil them, for in no sense can the small quantity of work now, or lately, returned as the result of this Board's labours be taken as a correct indication of that which is actually awaiting performance.

Mr. Benjamin Backhouse, H.A., R.I.B.A., who was granted leave of absence towards the close of the previous year, to enable him to proceed to England, returned early in March last and resumed his membership as the professional architect upon the Board, and Mr. R. C. Backhouse, F.I.A., N.S.W., who was temporarily appointed to act in his place, has, therefore, retired.

Mr. William Bailey, J.P., was duly elected Chairman of the Board for the past year.

We have, &c.,

How business paper is to be disposed of.

11. Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of, unless withdrawn before business paper made up.

12. Motions and Amendments.Motions—how to be moved.

14. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

15. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

16. No motion in council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Amendments may be moved.

17. When a motion in council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

18. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

Only one amendment at a time.

19. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

Amended question—further amendment may be moved thereon.

20. If an amendment be carried, the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be moved.

21. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any question amended as aforesaid, shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

22. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen how to be dealt with.

23. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman that such business be taken into consideration by the Council. And he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto, which shall be consistent with the notice of such business and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or, if being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made, it shall be dealt with in precisely the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business, or with good order; and if no notice shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck from the business paper.

Orders of the Day.Of what orders of the day shall consist.

24. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

25. Section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day. And the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to, the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

26. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

27. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing at the same time.

How Petitions are to be dealt with.

28. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned, or to some special Committee appointed to consider and report on the same; or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

29. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 26 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 23 to apply to letters.

30. Section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council as to petitions.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject to motion.

81. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or by any officer of the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council, which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

83. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of any kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

84. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without any due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

51. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, as provided for by section 5 of this "Part" of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by the section 41 of the same. But such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. 54. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council, at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. 58. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order the same shall be rejected: and, whenever any thing said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

59. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having being twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 53 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds: and on the third conviction and for every further conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

60. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retroactive operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

61. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken by ayes and noes, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon, and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

62. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative, and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of Protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

63. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute-book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Rules applicable to business in Committee.

64. The following sections of this "Part" of these By-laws shall (except as is herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in committee of the whole Council, namely—sections 17 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded) 18, 21, 41, 42, 45, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62.

Disorderly conduct in Committees—Refusal to vote.

65. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the Whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 56 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried, such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 62 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the minute-book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the Whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

66. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 52 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

67. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day; or that no leave be asked to sit again, and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

68. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, vice roce, by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided that in making of any such report as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceeding.

How reports are to be dealt with.

69. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute-book; but except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 65 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 62 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such fact, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered

70. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.—Such call compulsory in certain cases.

71. There shall, without any special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 65 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, orders, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

72. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so-called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence, but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

73. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds. Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

74. There shall be five Standing Committees, namely—a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, a Parks Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. 77. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council, drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Municipal District. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Municipal District; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

78. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, and bridges under the care and management of the Council, with the exception of any reserves set apart or dedicated by the Government and Executive Council for recreation or other public purposes. 80. The Parks Committee shall have the care, custody, and control of all public reserves and other public places under the care and the management of the Council; and all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council to be made therein shall be under their general direction. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

81. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject, matter, or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

82. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution of the Council; and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

The Chairman of these four Committees, as appointed to or removed from the chairmanship of the same, shall be thereby and without any further order regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General Purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867; and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorised. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorised.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

89. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order.—Certificate to be attached to report.

90. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate memorandum from the Committee, Mayor, or officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment, before recommending payment: Provided, however, that such special report as last herein mentioned may be embodied with a report by which payment of the amount in question is recommended: Provided also that in cases of special expenditure under section 88 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate: And provided, further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment, by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for the payment of such amount, shall be a sufficient authorisation for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorisations shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda, or authorisations have reference.

Common Seal and Records of the Council.

Common seal and press how secured.—Care of same.

91. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Council Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Council Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used.

92. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or, in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected.

93. The Council Clerk shall keep such books of account and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discovered in the keeping of the same; also, to report to the Council, from time to time, any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

All such records other than the minute book and other books, and other than electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, shall be numbered and filed in due order, and shall be duly registered by the Council Clerk in a book to be kept by him for that purpose. Upon the face of every document thus registered, to which there is any reference in the minute book, there shall be a note of the page wherein it is so referred to. And when any order has been made by the Council, or a report has been brought up by any Committee thereof, in reference to any document so registered as aforesaid, a note of such order or report shall be made upon such document. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may discover in the keeping of such records.

Impression upon seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—Penalties.

95. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to take any impression of the corporate seal, or to show, lay open, or expose any of the books or records of the Council to any person other than a member of the same, without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable, on conviction, for the first offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds; for a second offence, to a penalty not less than one pound or more than ten pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence, to a penalty of not less than five pounds or more than twenty-five pounds.

96. Any person removing any such book or other record of the Council, as aforesaid, from the Council Chamber, or the place where, by direction of the Council, such book or other record is usually kept, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal, as hereinafter provided, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record as aforesaid, and shall not have returned the same, to prosecution for stealing such book or record, or to an action at law for detention of the same, as the circumstances of the case may warrant: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Council Clerk by the Mayor, in order that such Clerk may post up entries, prepare returns, or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he should perform; also, that the Mayor, or Chairman of any Committee, or any Alderman acting for any such Chairman, may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purposes of any prosecution or suit at law by, against, or at the instance of the Council; but in all such cases such Council Clerk, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be, shall give a receipt under his hand for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed: And provided also, that the Mayor, Council Clerk, or other officer of the Council, who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of law shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book or record as speedily as may be, and shall, before removing the same, leave at the Council Chambers a receipt for such book or other record as aforesaid; and every such person so temporarily removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

The salary or allowance attached to such office shall in every case be fixed before such notice is given, and shall be stated in such notice.

Mode of appointment.

99. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot, in such mode as may at the time be determined on, whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

100. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the appointment by the Council, without advertisement, of any salaried officer or servant of the Corporation to any other permanent office or employment at the disposal of the Council to which no further salary is attached; or to prevent the appointment in like manner to any such officer or servant to any other office or employment of which the duties require only occasional attention, and are to be paid by allowances proportionate to the extent of such duties; or to prevent any similar appointment or employment by the Mayor, or by any Committee or officer of the Council under the authority of any By-laws; or to prevent the employment as may be from time to time found necessary, as may be ordered by the Council, of any workmen or labourers on the public works of the Municipality.

The Council Clerk, in addition to the duties which, by the Municipalities Act of 1867 or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder, he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Municipal District under the provisions of the said Municipalities Act. He shall also, under the direction of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may, by order of the Council (as hereafter provided), be entrusted to any other officer, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of such Mayor; and shall, when ordered by the Mayor or Finance Committee, make a half-yearly return of the revenue and expenditure.

Duties of Treasurer.

103. The Treasurer of the Council shall, within forty-eight hours of receipt of moneys on behalf of the Council, or as soon as possible, deposit all such moneys in a bank to be named by the Council to the credit of the Council, and his cash-book and bank pass-book balanced shall be laid before the Council at every meeting. He shall also lay his accounts before the Council at the first meeting of each month or oftener if required.

Special powers of Mayor.

104. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such explanation or information already given, and such return, statement, explanation, or information is so on record as hereinbefore provided; or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statements, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanation or information may, except as hereinafter provided, be either rendered in voce or put into writing, as the Mayor may direct.

How complaints against officers be dealt with.

105. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing, or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who, immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the case before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same. And if any such complaint be made to the Council or to any member or officer thereof, it shall be referred to, and investigated by, the Mayor before it shall be in any way (otherwise than by such reference) ordered upon or dealt with by such Council: Provided that every report, explanation, and information which may be made or rendered in reference to every such complaint shall be in writing. And such Mayor shall state in writing the result of every such investigation, and his opinion as to what order (if any) ought to be made in connection therewith; and such complaints, with all reports, explanations, and information as aforesaid in connection therewith, and the Mayor's statement as aforesaid thereon, shall be laid before the Council at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have made such statement, and shall be duly recorded: Provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to effect in any way the special power conferred upon the Mayor by section 152 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or any other special power which now is, or hereafter may be, conferred by statute upon such Mayor.

Miscellaneous.

109. Such suits or information for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breach of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any By-law made thereunder, or of any statute, the operation of which may have been extended to the Municipality, as may have been directed by the Council, or by the By-law Committee, or by the Mayor, to be commenced or laid, shall be so commenced or laid as follows, namely:—When against a member of the Council or an Auditor or any officer of the Corporation—by the Council Clerk, unless such Council Clerk shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by any other officer named by the Council for that purpose; when against any other per-

And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on an express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction of such Council, or where, on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information, the same shall have been dismissed on the merits: Provided that in any such case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may, on the order of the Council, be entrusted to an attorney.

Mode of calling for tenders.

110. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed or any materials supplied by contract, tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided.

Drafts of intended By-laws.

Any occupier of such building or land who shall hold or keep therein or thereon any exhibition, or shall use such building or land for any public amusements other than such exhibition or amusements mentioned in such certificate or license, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Any person who shall superintend, direct, or manage, or shall be otherwise in charge of any such exhibition or public amusement as aforesaid, in or upon any such building or land as aforesaid; or who shall reside in or upon any such building or land wherein or whereon any such exhibition or public amusement shall be held, kept, or carried on; or who, being the owner, lessee, or tenant of any such building or land, shall permit the same to be used for the purposes of any such exhibition or public amusement, shall be deemed the occupier of such building or land for all the purposes of these By-laws. And the said By-laws shall be held to be as applicable in every case to any number of such occupiers as to any single occupier; and every such occupier whose name shall have been so registered as aforesaid shall be deemed and taken to be, and continue to be, such occupier for all these purposes of these By-laws: Provided that in the event of any change in the occupancy of any such building or ground as aforesaid, it shall be competent for the parties concerned to notify the same, by writing under their hands, to the said Council Clerk, who shall lay such notification before the Council at its next meeting; and if, after such inquiry as such Council may deem necessary, there shall seem to be no valid objection to such change of occupancy, a corresponding entry shall be made in the registry aforesaid, and a new certificate shall be issued, which shall be in force until the then next ensuing 31st day of December, and no longer. And for every such new certificate a fee of five shillings shall be paid to the said Council Clerk for the benefit of the said Municipal District. PART I.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the dispatch of business at such hour in the evening as its members may from time to time determine, upon motion after due notice, on every alternate Wednesday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Business of ordinary meetings.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

- (f) Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
- (g) Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business at special meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Aldermen, at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Answers to questions.

6. It shall not be compulsory for the Mayor to give official replies to questions put to him, unless he shall have had twenty-four hours notice thereof.

Business paper—how prepared.

7. The business paper for every meeting of the Council shall be made up by the Council Clerk, and delivered to the Mayor and Aldermen, or left at their respective residences at least twenty-four hours before the time appointed for such meeting. The Council Clerk shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every order referring to business proposed to be entertained at such meeting.

Business paper for special meeting.

8. The business paper for a special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

9. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of.

10. All notices of motion, &c., for consideration at general meetings shall be delivered to the Council Clerk at least four days before such meeting, in writing, and shall be numbered by him as they are received and entered on the business paper according to their number; and each notice shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After business paper made up, all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

11. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motion, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended, without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions—how to be moved.

12. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper; and if not so moved or postponed, shall be struck out, and be considered to have lapsed.

14. No motion in Council shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

All amendments must be in writing.

16. All amendments must be in writing, signed by the mover, and delivered to the Clerk, who shall add thereto the name of the seconder. Any member, excepting the mover and seconder, having previously spoken to the original motion, shall not at this stage speak, but may do so on the amendment becoming the question before the Council.

Amendments—how disposed of.

17. Whenever an amendment is moved upon an original proposition, no second amendment shall be taken into consideration until the first amendment has been disposed of. If the first amendment be carried, it shall displace the original question, and become itself the question subject to any further amendment. If the first amendment be negatived, then a second amendment may be moved upon the original question under consideration; but only one amendment shall be submitted to the Council for discussion at one time.

Adjournments.

18. Any motion for adjournment, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived, it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until twenty minutes shall have elapsed.

Orders of the day.

Of what orders of the day shall consist.

19. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

Who to move.

MUNICIPAL GAS WORKS.

Established under provisions of Municipal Gas Act, 1884, and the Municipal Gas Act Amendment Act of 1886, and the Municipalities Act of 1867.

By-laws for the guidance of licensed gasfitters in supplying houses or other premises in the Borough of Orange and suburbs.

Gasfitters to be licensed.

1. Before any person shall affix any service-pipe to any pipe of the said Council, or alter, repair, or in any manner interfere with any pipe of the said Council, or any service-pipe, cock, or fitting connected with the pipe of the said Council, he shall obtain from the said Council a license in the form of Schedule A to execute such work, and any unlicensed person affixing, altering, repairing, or in any manner interfering with such pipe, service-pipe, cock or fitting as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Before any such license shall be granted by the said Council, the person applying for the same shall satisfy the said Council that he is a competent gasfitter.

Renewal of licenses.

2. All licensed gasfitters to attend at the Council Clerk's Office on or before the 10th January in each year to have their names and licenses registered, and the latter endorsed. Only such gasfitters as comply with this Regulation will be deemed "Licensed Gasfitters," and allowed to work as such.

Repairs to service pipe.

3. In every case of repairs to service-pipes, or where it may be wished to transfer service-pipes from one main to another or to connect with other service-pipes or where any change or alteration to them may be required in any way, notice of such repair or alteration, &c., must be given in writing to the Manager at least twenty-four hours before such work shall be commenced, except in cases of great waste of gas, when immediate steps must be taken to stop the leak, and notice given to the Manager of the same forthwith.

Depth of pipes.

4. All service-pipes must be layed eighteen inches below the surface of roadways and gutters and all meters fixed must be in accordance with the direction of the Manager or other authorised officer of the Municipal Council.

Quality of pipes, &c

5. All service-pipes, taps, cocks, and all fittings, &c., shall be approved of by the Manager of the Gasworks or other authorised officer of the Municipal Council.

Laying on services.

6. The Council's workmen are to open the trench, bore the mains, and insert the stop-cock within the Municipal boundaries, the stop-cock being of the kind, sample of which is on view at the Council Clerk's Office, the same being left at the Council Clerk's Office along with the notice to connect.

Delays in completion.

In the event of the articles above-named not being ready for fixing at the period named the trench may be filled in again by the Council's workmen, and the reopening and filling of the same shall be paid for by the gasfitter, in addition to any other costs which may accrue under these Regulations.

Notices required.

7. Twenty-four hours' notice to be given of the day on which it is intended to connect meters in order that the proper officer may attend and see them fixed correctly. On no account are gasfitters or other persons to take off, alter, or otherwise interfere with meters or pipes connecting the same, unless by the permission of the Council Clerk and in the presence of an authorised officer of the Corporation.

By the time these operations are completed the gasfitter who has been employed to lay on the service must have taken all his measurements, prepared all the pipes to the exact length, complete with the lead connections of approved length and weight per yard, properly jointed to cap linings, barrel union, &c., ready for attachment to the stop-cock, so as to avert any delay in the refilling of the trench.

Infringement of rules.

8. The officers connected with the gas service are strictly enjoined to report every case of infringement of the regulations and the gasfitter offending against any of them will have to show cause why his license should not be suspended or cancelled, as may be thought proper in the circumstances of the case, besides being held responsible for any damages occasioned by his so transgressing any of the regulations.

Gasfitters to get By-laws.

9. A printed copy of the above By-laws and all regulations made thereunder will be given to each Licensed Gasfitter.

SCHEDULE A.

GASFITTER'S LICENSE.

The Municipal Council of Orange, hereinafter called the Council, do hereby authorise..... of..... to fix and repair fittings and connections for the consumers of gas supplied by the said Council. But this license is granted expressly on the conditions following: that is to say—

1. That all work done under this license be performed in strict conformity with Council's By-laws and the rules to be observed by Licensed Gasfitters, on the back hereof, and under the inspection, and to the satisfaction, of such officer as the said Council shall from time to time appoint for the superintendence thereof.

2. That the holder hereof will not, under any circumstances be allowed to make use of his license to obtain a meter for work performed by unlicensed persons, nor for the purpose of bringing such work in any way under the Council's rules and regulations for Licensed Gasfitters, without the special sanction of the Council.

3. That no lights be provided for under this license, but such as the said Council shall authoritatively.

4. That no license will be granted until the Council is satisfied that the person applying is capable of doing the work in a proper and workmanlike manner. The licensing fees for gasfitters shall be twenty-one shillings per annum, payable with application for license.

5. That this license shall be rescinded at any time the said Council may think fit; and should the license be cancelled from any cause whatever, the Council shall in no way be liable for the gasfitter, nor for the repayment of any portion of the fee.

6. That this license shall cease to be of effect at the expiration of twelve calendar months from the date hereof, when it shall be optional with the said Council to renew the same or not.

Rules to be observed by Licensed Gasfitters referred to in License.

1. The Council's officers will lay on the service-pipe to meter free of charge, provided same is not more than 10 feet from the alignment of street. When the meter is more than 10 feet from the alignment, the consumer will have to bear the additional cost.

2. Previous to work being commenced, the printed preliminary notice (No. 1) for that purpose must be furnished to the Municipal Council's manager, and in no instance shall the work be covered up before that officer has passed it.

3. The stand-pipe and principal lead of piping throughout the premises about to be fitted up must be of black iron of not less than 2 in. diameter (and other pipes according to appended scale), and to be fitted, where practicable, with a fall towards the meter.

4. All connections taken off iron-pipes for brackets, &c., if of tin tube, must be properly connected to brass unions, and screwed into the iron pipe.

5. Chandeliers and hall lamps must be hung from iron pipe. In cases where the chandelier hangs between two joists, it must be hung direct from an iron tee-piece, the pipe resting upon both joists.

6. In all cases the board under which the principal lead of gas-pipe is laid should be screwed down, so that they may be easily removed in case of accident; but the manager will use discretionary power respecting this rule.

7. The gasfitter is in all cases to consult with the manager relative to the position of the meter (which must be always in a dry place, and where the meter-reader will have no difficulty in inspecting it), so that the place may be agreed upon before commencing the job, to prevent confusion afterwards.

8. The meter must be connected to the service and fittings with best lead pipes, having a brass stop-cock and brass barrel unions, and on no account will a tail-piece be allowed to be fixed before the meter without sanction; but where dry meters are used a tail-piece must be attached, or the pipe laid in such a manner to prevent the water, from the condensation of the gas, falling into the meter.

9. Before the meter can be issued, the usual Fitter's Notice No. 2 must be sent to the Manager's Office at least three days previously, so that the work may be finally inspected, and no meter will be issued unless the work is performed according to these rules, and to the satisfaction of the Manager. Meters will not be issued after 10.30 a.m., except under very exceptional circumstances.

10. No fresh lights, gas cooking stoves, or gas fires are in any instance to be attached or added to existing fittings without first giving the Manager notice of the fitter's intention so to do.

11. Under no circumstances are gas cookers, hired from the Council, to be removed or reconnected without permission first had and obtained from the Manager; notice of such removal or reconnection must be lodged at the Manager's Office in the usual way, on the ordinary Fitter's Notice Form, as per Rules 2 and 9.

12. No licensed fitter will, under any circumstances, be allowed to obtain a meter to connect the work performed by unlicensed persons without the express sanction of the Council's Manager, and should he do so with or without such sanction he will be held responsible for the whole of such work, as if performed by himself under his agreement with the Council.

13. These rules must be strictly adhered to, but in special cases the Manager may use his own discretion, provided he report the particulars to the Council Clerk on the same day.

14. No burners or fittings are to be used but those approved by the Council's Manager, unless with his consent in writing.

15. All work to be done in a workmanlike and efficient manner, and to be kept in good order, at the fitter's charge for at least one year.

NOTE.—The notices required from the fitter are—

- 1st. The Preliminary Notice No. 1 before commencing work.
- 2nd. The Fitter's Notice No. 2 for final inspection and completion.
- 3rd. Notice of intention to connect additional lights to existing fittings.
- 4th. Notice for removal and reconnection of hired cookers.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

62. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 48 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How reports are to be dealt with.

65. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute book; but, except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate of such motion, shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council, and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 61 of this "Part" of these By-laws, or of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 58 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

69. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration, and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

71. The re-appointment of the three said first-named Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case a list or lists of the members for each ward shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result. 6. No discussion of the minutes shall be allowed, except on the point of accuracy.

156. Any person offending against any of the four last and immediately preceding By-laws, shall for each offence upon conviction before one or more Justices, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

162. Any persons conducting or taking horses along any street, thoroughfare, or public place within the Borough, shall keep them secured by means of a halter or bridle, and shall lead them, and no person shall run or drive, or cause to be run or driven, any horse or horses loose through any such street, thoroughfare, or public place as aforesaid. If any person shall neglect to repair any service-pipe conveying water from the pipes of the said Council into the premises of such person, after having received notice from any officer of the said Council that such service-pipe requires repairing, the said Council may stop the water from flowing into such premises, either by cutting off the service-pipe or otherwise, as to the said Council may seem fit, until the necessary repairs shall have been effected. 356. No proprietor or driver of any omnibus, hackney-carriage, or hansom cab within the said Borough shall demand, claim, receive, or take more than the several fares or sums mentioned or set forth hereunder in the Schedules B and C to these By-laws, or such other sums as the Council of the said Borough shall from time to time determine or appoint in substitution thereof as hereinafter provided; and every proprietor, driver, or conductor failing to comply with or committing a breach of this By-law or any other By-law under this Part shall—subject nevertheless to the special penalty provided by the 354th By-law—for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

385. The said fees and charges shall be payable by the several persons hereinbefore rendered liable to pay the same so soon as the cattle in respect of which they are chargeable shall be brought to the said cattle sale-yards of the Borough, or yarded in or brought to any other sale-yard or premises in the said Borough for sale or for slaughter, and the same shall be paid accordingly into the hands of the Inspector of the said cattle sale-yards or his assistants: Provided that such inspector may, with the consent of the Mayor for the time being, arrange with the owner or occupier of any sale-yards other than those of the Borough, or of any premises for the slaughter of cattle, or with any auctioneer conducting sales in the Borough sale-yards for making weekly returns or statements of all cattle brought to their yards or premises respectively for sale or slaughter, or of all cattle sold by such auctioneer since the time up to which the next preceding return shall have been made and for payment upon such weekly return. And if any person shall fail to make payment as herein first above provided, or shall, after arranging as aforesaid, make any false or incorrect return or statement therein, or shall omit from the same any of the required particulars of cattle, or shall fail to make faithful weekly payments in accordance with such arrangements, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound for any such offence.

386. The Council may, at its absolute discretion, in the event of application being made therefor in writing within three days of same having been offered for sale, refund the whole or any part of the fees and charges paid in respect of cattle yarded in the sale-yards for sale but not afterwards sold within the Borough: Provided nevertheless, that immediately on such written application being delivered to the Council Clerk, he shall at once submit same to the Sale-yards Inspector, without whose report and recommendation the application shall not be considered. And in every such application the grounds thereof shall be fully and clearly stated.

The drivers of such vehicles which may be there, whether plying for hire or on any duly appointed stand, shall, when so required, remove their vehicles and arrange in any other street as directed.

23. The driver of any public vehicle shall stop the same upon demand by any officer of the Council requiring to count the number of passengers, or to ascertain the name of any person who may be offending against the By-laws, or for the purpose of examining any horse or horses attached to such vehicle which may appear to be receiving ill-treatment or unfit for use, or for any other purpose; and any driver not stopping when so called shall be liable to a penalty.

24. No licensed driver or conductor shall demand, receive or take more than the several fares or amounts fixed by the Council by the By-laws. If any person pay the driver any sum exceeding the proper fare, he may recover the sum in excess, and the driver shall also be liable to a penalty.

25. No public vehicle shall be drawn through any part of the Municipality at a walking pace except whilst passing places of public worship on Sunday during divine service, or whilst in a funeral procession or turning street corners or over crossings: Provided that this By-law does not apply to drays. Any driver offending against this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than ten pounds.

26. NEW SOUTH WALES.

DEPARTMENT OF LANDS.

(THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Printed in accordance with Resolutions of both Houses of Parliament.

To The Hon. Henry Copeland, Esq., M.P., Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 18th April, 1893.

I have the honor to submit, for your information, the Thirteenth Annual Report of the Department, dealing with the business of the year 1892.

Introductory.

During 1892 several important points of law under the Lands Acts were determined by the Supreme Court. In the case of England & Baird (N.S.W. L.R. Vol. XIII, part II, p. 121) it was decided (on an appeal by the Minister from the decision of the Land Appeal Court) that two or more persons cannot take up a conditional purchase for their common use and benefit. The Land Appeal Court, relying upon section 6 of the Acts Shortening Act, which provides that in all Acts the singular shall be deemed and taken to include the plural unless the contrary as to number is expressly provided, had held that the words "any person," in section 23 of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, were susceptible of being read as "any persons."

In the case of one Balfe the question at issue was whether the holder of a conditional purchase of land within a special area was entitled (like the holder of a conditional purchase of ordinary land) to a conditional lease by virtue of it. The land applied for under conditional lease was not within a special area. The Land Appeal Court decided in the applicant's favour, but, on appeal by the Minister, the Supreme Court reversed the decision. (N.S.W. L.R. Vol. XIII, part II, p. 124.)

The case of Ferrier v. Smith and others (N.S.W. L.R. Vol. XIII, part II, p. 146), although arising under the Crown Lands Act, is interesting mainly from a mining point of view. In this case a certain conditional purchase made in 1882 was held by a Miss Bear, who granted leave to Smith and others to mine upon the land. Ferrier, however, obtained a mining permit under section 45 of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, but he, when attempting to exercise his right under it, was interfered with by the other parties. The question was whether Ferrier, who was in possession under the permit, had such an exclusive right to the land as would enable him to maintain an action for trespass, and this point was settled in his favour.

The case of ex parte Phipps and another (N.S.W. L.R. Vol. XIII, part II, p. 171) arose in connection with the Pitt Town Common. The land had been dedicated in the year 1853, and, therefore, long anterior to the passing of the first Crown Lands Act. On the 18th November, 1890, the dedication was revoked under the the provisions of section 105 of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 and section 41 of the Crown Lands Act of 1889. Subsequently, however, a doubt grew up as to whether the revocation was valid. The case came before the Supreme Court on a rule nisi, calling upon the Justices, who found certain persons guilty of cutting and removing standing timber on the Common, to show cause why a prohibition should not be issued to restrain them. The persons found guilty had been charged at the Windsor Police Court on an information sworn by the trustees of the Common (after the dedication had been revoked) that they were not persons claiming under any common right, or any permission of the trustees, or any subsisting license from the Minister under the provisions of the Commons Acts, 1873-1886, or the regulations under those or any other statute. It was argued that the Legislature had no power to deal with land which was not waste land at the time of passing of the Constitution Act 18 and 19 Vict., c. 54; that the Common not having been waste land at this time section 105 referred to did not apply; and that the revocation was a nullity. The decision of the Supreme Court, however, was that the powers of revocation conferred by section 105 are not limited as suggested, but on the contrary are of general applicability and apply to all dedications or reservations of Crown lands whensoever made.

The case re Lewis was one in which, (on a case stated at the instance of Lewis) the Supreme Court indorsed the decision of the Land Appeal Court. The points involved had reference to section 125 of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, which contains a provision that the purchaser at a Sheriff's sale of an incomplete conditional purchase shall complete any unfulfilled conditions attaching to it. In the case in question a certain conditional purchase, which had been selected by one Fry, was sold by the Sheriff, before the expiration of the residence term, to Lewis; but it was found that Lewis was merely the nominee of one Hanlon, the latter being the real purchaser. Both the Land Appeal and the Supreme Courts ruled that Lewis' residence amounted to nothing, and that as Hanlon had not resided the conditional purchase was liable to forfeiture. (N.W.S. L.R., Vol. XIII, part IV, p. 225.)

The case of Attorney-General v. the Municipal Council of Sydney was an important and interesting one. By proclamation in the Gazette of 5th October, 1866, the Governor-in-Council dedicated, under the 5th section of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861, 490 acres to the purpose of a permanent common. The land is popularly known as Moore Park. By a subsequent notice in the Gazette, dated the 15th August, 1871, the Governor-in-Council appointed the Municipal Council as trustees of certain specified portions of land in the City of Sydney dedicated for public recreation. Among these portions the common was included—the fact being ignored that it had not been dedicated for recreation purposes. The Municipal Council leased to the Agricultural Society, on the 5th September, 1881, some of the land, which the Society fenced in, and on which it erected buildings, made paddocks, courses for racing, &c., and also put up turnstiles, at which a charge was made for admission to shows and race meetings; and by some agreement or arrangement the Driving Park Club was allowed to hold its meetings on the ground.

One of the questions involved was whether the public could be charged admission, and the question of the right of the public was held to turn on the question of the dedication of the land. In an elaborate judgment the Chief Judge in Equity ruled that the land must be regarded as a pasturage common, and that such persons as should come within the category of "Commoners" had the right of free and uninterrupted pasturage over it; that the Municipal Council (even if their appointment as trustees were valid) would only be trustees to conserve the rights of the commoners; and that, not being entitled to act in derogation of the commoners' rights, they were not entitled to authorise the making of any charge for entering any part of the land. N.S.W. L.R., Vol. XIII, pt. IV, p. 151. The difficulty of the Agricultural Society has, however, for the present, been met by the passing of the Act 56 Vic. No. VIII., which was introduced by Mr. Copeland during the present session.

The Land Appeal Court.

On the 30th March, 1892, the Judicial Offices Act (55 Victoria No. 26) was assented to, and by virtue thereof the title of the Land Court thereafter was changed to that of Land Appeal Court, and its members designated as "Commissioners."

On

On the 1st May, 1892, Mr. F. E. Rogers, Q.C., resigned the position of President of the Land Court, and was succeeded by Mr. Alexander Oliver, M.A. (late Parliamentary Draftsman), as President of the Land Appeal Court.

During the year 1892 the Court heard and disposed of 1,103 cases, comprising 483 Appeals, 513 References, and 77 Motions. The Court held sittings at Sydney on 11 different occasions, and in the country as follows:—Armidale, Hay, Tamworth, and Wagga Wagga, each twice; and Bourke, Broken Hill, Cooma, Dubbo, and Young each once. At the Sydney sittings 671 cases were heard, whilst 432 were dealt with in the country.

Auction Sales.

Of town lands, an area of 1,427 acres $24\frac{5}{8}$ perches, representing 3,488 lots, were submitted for public competition during 1892, and resulted in the sale of 1,467 lots, containing an area of 590 acres 1 rood $4\frac{1}{6}$ perches. The total price realised was £149,526 19s. 11d., the average price being £253 6s. 4d. per acre. During 1891 1,047 lots, containing in all 435 acres 1 rood $30\frac{1}{2}$ perches, were sold for the sum of £30,844 18s., being at an average price of £70 16s. 9d. an acre. The difference between the average prices per acre for the two years is very striking, but it should be mentioned that during 1892 the sale of the old Central Police Court site in George-street, Sydney, (an area of 1 rood $29\frac{1}{2}$ perches) alone brought £124,000. (Schedule XLIX.)

Of suburban lands, 1,422 lots, with an area of 6,446 acres $20\frac{1}{4}$ perches, were submitted to auction, and 608 lots, comprising an area of 2,328 acres $32\frac{1}{2}$ perches, were sold for the sum of £13,162 8s., being an average price of £5 13s. 1d. an acre. While the area sold approximated that disposed of during 1891, the price secured was lower, inasmuch as during the earlier year 603 lots, containing an area of 2,322 acres and $6\frac{1}{4}$ perches, were alienated for £18,315 17s., an average of £7 18s. an acre. (Schedule L.)

Of country lands, the area offered during 1892 was 260,535 acres $2\frac{1}{2}$ perches, comprised in 2,893 lots, of which 896, with an area of 80,062 acres $8\frac{1}{4}$ perches, were sold for the sum of £148,028 19s. 3d., an average of £1 17s. an acre. The area sold during the year was a considerable advance on that disposed of in 1891 (when 703 lots, containing 44,347 acres 3 roods $33\frac{1}{2}$ perches, were disposed of for £92,360 11s. 3d.) (Schedule LI.)

The aggregate area (including town, suburban, and country lands) submitted to auction during the year was 268,408 acres 1 rood $7\frac{1}{6}$ perches, of which 82,980 acres 2 roods $4\frac{1}{2}$ perches were disposed of for the sum of £310,718 7s. 2d.

A large proportion of the lands submitted, however, consisted of remnants or isolated portions which, although open to conditional purchase for years, had failed to attract selectors. The subjoined table shows the business under this heading transacted during the years 1891 and 1892:—

	Year.	No. of lots offered.	Area offered.			No. of lots sold.	Area sold.			Amount realized.			Average price per acre.

An area of 294 acres 3 roods 4¼ perches, and deposits to the extent of £1,588 4s. 6d., were forfeited to the Crown in 154 cases, the balance of purchase money not having been paid within the required time. Guarantee deposits upon applications for the sale of land; moneys paid upon sales cancelled with the purchasers' consent, the land being required for public purposes; fees paid in excess; and fines upon late payment of balance of purchase money, amounting in all to £549 16s. 2d., were refunded to the persons concerned. (Schedules LIII, LIV.)

A sum of £2,550 19s. 2d. (representing the value of improvements added to the upset price of certain lands pending inquiry as to ownership) was refunded to the persons who had satisfactorily established their claims to the improvements. (Schedule LIV.)

Conditional Purchases.

The following schedule supplies the number of applications made for conditional purchases during 1892 and the seven preceding years, commencing with 1885, during which year the Crown Lands Act of 1884 came into operation. From this it will be seen that last year, as compared with the years under review, shows the decline which, as mentioned in a previous report, was looked for in the absence of the special stimulus which existed at an earlier period, though it may reasonably be conjectured that the general state of depression has not been without its influence on the business under this heading as well as other transactions under the Land Acts.

An analysis of Schedule XI shows that, of the applications received during 1892, 2,134, for an area of 425,456 acres 1 rood 21 perches, were for original purchases requiring residence,—2,145, representing an area of 380,059 acres 35 perches, for additional purchases,—and 117, for 10,883 acres 3 roods 3 perches, for non-residential purchases. Included in the foregoing are 928 applications for 168,637 acres 2 roods 6 perches within special areas. This comparison is exhibited in the table immediately following; while full details of the applications lodged during 1892 will be found in the Schedule referred to.

During the year 4,812 applications were confirmed for an area of 927,709 acres 2 roods and 7 perches, and 1,216 were disallowed, making a total of 6,028 disposed of. Vide Schedules XII and XIII. These figures refer to the following applications :—

The number of conditional purchases current on the 31st December, 1892, was 163,456, representing an area of 21,797,032 acres 3 roods 30 perches. It is, however, pointed out that included among these are conditional purchases applied for after the 1st December, 1889, which have not been disallowed, as on that date the Crown Lands Act of 1889 came into operation under the provisions of which the title to a conditional purchase commences from the date of the application itself. Some of these applications, however, will, in all probability, when they come forward for consideration be disallowed.

799 conditional purchases, for an area of 83,421 acres 12 perches, were gazetted forfeited during the year, as against 471 purchases, containing 50,039 acres 1 rood 21 perches, in 1891. Of the forfeitures during 1892, 492 arose through the non-fulfilment of conditions, and 307 through the non-payment of interest or instalment. Reversal of forfeiture took place in 1892 of 60 conditional purchases, comprising 7,097 acres 1 rood 15 perches, of which 46 had been forfeited for non-payment of interest, &c. Vide Schedules XX to XXIV.

Two conditional purchases, of an aggregate area of 80 acres, were validated during 1892, under the provisions of the 138th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, vide Schedule XXVII, while it will be seen, on reference to Schedule XXVIII, that 2 mining conditional purchases, representing an area of 80 acres, were dealt with in a like manner, under the provisions of the Act, 50 Vic. No. 21.

Schedules XVIII and XIX exhibit details of the transfers received during the past year in each Land District, when 9,871 were received, and 9,861 (including some received previously) were finally disposed of; as against 10,240 received during 1891, during which year 11,494 were dealt with. The transfers received during 1892 referred to 19,695 conditional purchases, and the stamp duty paid amounted to £5,889 5s. The transfers disposed of referred to 14,017 conditional purchases.

Voidance was declared in respect of two conditional purchases which had been made under the Repealed Acts, and which together contained 520 acres; and adjustment in the area of 377 conditional purchases, also made under these acts, was effected, consequent on reduction or increase of their acreage. Schedules XXIV.

The instructions issued by Chairmen of the Local Land Boards to Inspectors during 1892, in connection with conditional purchases, numbered 11,966, and these officers furnished 11,390 reports as to the manner in which the conditions imposed by law were being carried out by the holders of the land, vide Schedule XV, which also shows that, including conditional leases, homestead leases, &c., instructions issued in 19,319 cases and that 17,699 reports were made. Comparing 1891 with the year under review it will be noticed that the inspection work has largely increased, a circumstance explained by the fact that the large addition during recent years to the stock of conditional purchases, &c., necessarily represents extra work during a lengthened period after the land has been taken up. The figures for 1891 and 1892 are :—

Instructions on conditional purchases	11,794	11,966
Reports on conditional purchases	8,688	11,390

The

The following miscellaneous applications in connection with conditional purchases, as well, however, as conditional leases, &c, should be mentioned as having been dealt with by Local Land Boards. These were received, some during and some prior to 1892. Vide Schedules XXIX to XXXIV :—

During the year 1,235 certificates of conformity were issued, relating to conditional purchases under the Repealed Acts, and 6,570 to conditional purchases under the Acts now in force. In connection with conditional purchases of the latter class 123 certificates of abandonment were also issued. (Schedules XVII, XXXV and XXXVI.)

Special Areas.

During the year 289 special areas, containing an aggregate area of 159,502 acres, were proclaimed. (Vide Schedule LXXV.) On reference to schedule CXLVI the whole of the operations in connection with the proclamation and alienation of special areas will be seen from the commencement of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 to the 31st December, 1892; during which period 1,107,288 acres 2 roods 1 perch were proclaimed under the special area clauses. Of this area, however, 189,747 acres and 7 perches were, by reservation or otherwise, rendered unavailable for selection, thus reducing the land actually available for alienation to 917,541 acres 1 rood 34 perches. The area alienated to the close of 1892, within special areas, comprised 612,610 acres 34 perches, the total price represented being £1,255,143 1s. 7½d., of which £127,249 15s. 8d. was paid as deposit. It will thus be seen that 67 per cent. of the land available for selection has been disposed of at an average price of £2 0s. 11½d. per acre.

The returns indicate that the largest per centage of alienation was again secured in the Forbes Land Board District, where no less than 91 per cent. of the area available was selected, Goulburn being next with 82 per cent., Orange, 80 per cent., Wagga Wagga, 76 per cent., and Cooma, 70 per cent. A comparison with the Annual Report for 1891 shows that the percentage for the two years, 1891 and 1892, approximate very closely. In 8 land districts the whole of the land available was conditionally purchased; 90 to 99 per cent., in 8; 80 to 89 per cent., in 10; 70 to 79 per cent., in 8; 60 to 69 per cent., in 12; 50 to 59 per cent., in 11; 40 to 49 per cent., in 4; 30 to 39 per cent., in 6; and the percentage was under 29 in 16 land districts.

The area available within the Wagga Wagga Land Board District was the largest, being 287,444 acres 2 roods 32 perches, of which 220,541 acres 1 rood 21 perches were selected at a total price of £507,669 15s. 7d., or at an average price of £2 6s. 0½d. The deposits amount to £50,767 1s. 8d.

During the year a number of special areas, within suburban or population areas, were proclaimed at Adaminaby, Armidale, Bathurst, Bega, Bellingen, Berowra, Bulla, Cargellico, Cargo, Condobolin, Forbes, Galargambone, Gooloogong, Grafton, Gunndah, Moonbi, Moruya, Moulamein, Parkes, Tenterfield, Ulladulla, Warren, and Wellington, the object being to render land available for bona-fide conditional purchase in the vicinity of towns, and to encourage settlement within easy reach of a probable market. The area so proclaimed was 18,152 acres and 34 perches, of which 9,159 acres and 19 perches were taken up. The deposits paid amounted to £2,961 14s. 9d., the average price per acre being £3 4s. 8d.

These lands were subdivided into areas to meet the requirements of the localities, and to accord with the nature of the soil and its capacity for cultivation. Beyond the fact that residence is compulsory, the conditions of selection within these Special Areas do not differ from those of ordinary conditional purchases. No money other other than the deposit and survey fee (the deposit being one-tenth of the purchase money) is required for three years from the date of the application, when annual instalments, at the rate of one-twentieth of the full price per acre commence and are payable until the balance of purchase money, with 4 per cent. interest, is paid.

The advantage of this system (which was inaugurated by the Act of 1889) is that, the price being a fixed, not an upset one, persons taking up the land are not required to compete at auction, as they were before that Act came into operation; and, moreover, by limiting the area which can be taken up, monopoly is prevented, and means afforded by which town and suburban settlement can be fostered, by enabling areas more or less suitable for agriculture, orchards, &c., to be acquired with a small capital and on easy terms.

Improvement Purchases.

Three hundred and eighteen applications were made to purchase (by virtue of improvements under section 46 of the Act of 1884) an area of 184 acres 1 rood 39½ perches within proclaimed gold-fields. This compares unfavourably with the business of 1891, when 1,062 applications, representing an area of 653 acres 1 rood 27 perches, were received. The falling off is no doubt attributable in a measure to the demand for land at Broken Hill, Peak Hill, &c., having to some extent exhausted itself, and to the unsettled industrial conditions at the former place.

Of the applications received, 47 were refused and 39 granted at an appraised value of £658 18s. (inclusive of penalties) for 20 acres 38 perches. In addition to these 411 applications, made prior to the 1st January, 1892, were approved for an area of 243 acres 3 roods 37 perches, which realised (inclusive of penalties) the sum of £8,780 8s. 6d.

An area of 190 acres 14½ perches in three portions was alienated, under the provisions of the 2nd clause of the Lands Acts Amendment Act of 1875, at an appraised value of £343 5s. 1d., the price with penalties amounting to £355 13s. 1d.

The details of the foregoing are set out in Schedules LV, LVI, LVII, from which it will be seen that a total area of 454 acres 1 rood 9½ perches, in 453 portions, was alienated at an appraised value of £9,794 19s. 7d.

Conditional Leases.

Business under this head, as pointed out in previous reports, is necessarily dependent on that connected with conditional purchases. Conditional leases, in fact, owe their existence to conditional purchases, the one being, as it were, the parent of the other, so that such fluctuations as exhibit themselves in the demand for one must be looked for as having a twofold effect. It thus happens that the number of applications received during 1892 shows a falling off, as compared with the number lodged during the previous year, and this fact must be traced to the causes touched upon in the chapter dealing with applications for conditional purchase. The following statement shows, in a comparative form, the applications received since 1885 inclusive, from which it will be seen that 2,692 applications for an area of 1,171,971 acres 1 rood 18 perches were received during 1892, as against 3,952 for 2,177,180 acres and 15 perches in 1891.

1892	2,692	1,171,971	1 18	9,769	5	1

* This includes 1,994 applications; area, 1,193,617 acres 30 perches, made under the 54th clause of the Act of 1884.

Taking into account applications made during 1892 and previous years, 3,215, representing an area of 1,598,746 acres 2 roods 30 perches, were confirmed, and 822 disallowed, making a total of 4,037 disposed of. Of the applications lodged during the year, 844, of an area of 358,552 acres and 20 perches, were confirmed, and 384 disallowed. Of those lodged between the 1st December, 1889, and the 1st January, 1892, 2,365, representing an area of 1,236,683 acres 1 rood 10 perches, were confirmed, and 432 disallowed, while of those received prior to the 1st December, 1889, 6, with an area of 3,511 acres 1 rood, were confirmed, and 6 disallowed.

The conditional leases gazetted during 1892 numbered 3,950. The leases current on the 31st December, 1892, under the 48th, 52nd, and 54th clauses of the Act of 1884, and the 25th section of the Act of 1889, numbered 17,753, representing an area of 10,713,951 acres 3 roods 10 perches, and an annual rent of £131,709 14s. 10d. To these (which represent leases actually gazetted as approved) are, however, to be added leases applied for subsequently to 1st December, 1889, still undisposed of, as the Crown Lands Act of 1889 conceded the right to occupy the land from the date of application. Taking these together, the number of leases in existence at the end of 1892 was 19,300, representing an area of 11,759,995 acres; but it is pointed out that disallowance of some of the applications thus included will probably take place.

An area of 247,790 acres 18 perches comprised in 621 conditional leases, and representing a rent of £2,844 16s. 2d., was declared forfeited during the year, and in the same period 1,522 conditional leases were transferred.

During the year appraisements by the Land Boards of the rent of 3,984 conditional leases were submitted to the Minister and were dealt with by him in terms of Section 6 of the Crown Lands Act of 1889. Of these the rents approved by the Land Boards were accepted in 3,838 cases, and 146 cases were referred to the Land Appeal Court.

The rents of 316 conditional leases reappraised, under the 29th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, were gazetted during 1892, in 28 of which no alteration had taken place in rent, in 164 the rent exceeded the original rate, and in 124 cases the new rate was less than the original rate, and consequently to the Crown's disadvantage.

In connection with conditional leases 6,650 instructions were forwarded to Inspectors, and 5,797 reports were furnished by them. (Schedules XXXVIII to XLVIII.)

Sales under the Newcastle Pasturage Reserve Act.

The transactions under the provisions of the Newcastle Pasturage Reserve Act have, for the most part, been fully explained in the Reports for 1890 and 1891; and practically nothing is left to be said with regard to the cases except in so far as their present position is concerned. A special point of interest is, however, the position of the parties with respect to their liabilities to the Crown.

As previously mentioned, the total number of applications made was 1,169. These have all been disposed of; and such as were not disallowed represented 964 portions, containing in the aggregate 226 acres 1 rood and 17 $\frac{1}{4}$ perches. This land was appraised at £61,314, being an average of £271 per acre. The different prices, as might be expected, vary, ranging from about £15 to £400 per lot.

The greater proportion (i.e., 869) of the cases were gazetted on 30th December, 1890; 73 were gazetted on the 20th January; 7 on the 10th March; and 14 on the 8th December, 1891; and 1 was gazetted on the 7th June, 1892. According to the provisions of the Act the purchase money was payable in six instalments, interest at the rate of 5 per cent. being payable at the same time on the balance from time to time outstanding. No money was deposited with the application; but a first instalment (without interest) was payable within three months after the date of the Gazette notice of approval, and an instalment (with interest) was afterwards payable annually on the recurring date of the Gazette notice. Within the first twelve months months therefore two payments were due. It has, unfortunately, happened that these terms have not in a large number of cases seemed to be sufficiently liberal, having regard to the circumstances of the purchasers. Most of these persons are miners whose means were probably at the outset somewhat limited, and have since become more so owing to the shrinkage of the Newcastle coal trade and the general depression affecting the whole Colony at the present time.

In 56 instances no money whatever has been paid, and in these the applications have been gazetted as forfeited; in 90 the first instalment has been paid, but the second and third instalments are overdue; in 589 the third instalment alone is outstanding. It is satisfactory to be able to state, however, that 169 cases have been completed by the payment in full of the purchase money, amounting to £11,726 16s. The applications current number 739, with purchase money amounting to £46,248. (Schedule LXIII.)

The condition of things, before explained, led to the introduction by Mr. Copeland of a Bill for the amendment of the Newcastle Pasturage Reserve Act, which was passed into law as Act 56 Vic. No. 12. This Act will enable the purchasers to clear off their present balances by twenty instalments, with interest at the rate of 4, instead of 5, per cent. per annum.

Artesian Well Leases.

These leases are granted to Occupation License, or Annual Lease, holders under the 45th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, the provisions of which admit (for their protection) of the temporary reservation of a specific area surrounding sites on which operations connected with the search for and conservation of water are being carried on. The issue of the lease ultimately depends upon the discovery of water in a sufficient quantity and of a sufficiently permanent character.

During 1892 six applications were tendered for permission to bore and search for water, and an area comprising 61,436 acres was temporarily exempted from sale and lease in connection therewith. (Schedule CXX.)

Schedule CXXI indicates in detail the artesian well leases, approved by the Governor-in-Council to the 31st December, 1892, from which it will be seen that 12 leases have been granted representing an area of 122,880 acres.

Homestead Leases.

The following schedule exhibits a comparison of the transactions of the number of Homestead Lease applications made since 1885, inclusive, and shows that during 1892, 176 applications were received for an area of 1,214,447 acres, the deposits amounting to £5,048 16s. 6d., as against 191 during 1891 for 1,515,929 acres, the deposits for which amounted to £6,278 2s. 1d.

Of the applications received during 1892, 12 were refused and 20 granted, leaving 144 outstanding at the close of the year, but including applications undisposed of on the 31st December, 1891, action on 247 was completed during the year, 38 having been either refused or permitted to be withdrawn, and 209 approved, for an area of 1,668,272 acres at a rent of £10,057 13s. 6d. per annum. (Schedule CXII, CXIII, CXIV.)

The homestead leases, current on the 31st December, 1892, numbered 1,116, representing an area of 9,743,022 acres 2 roods, and an annual rent of £65,652 12s. (Schedule CXV.)

Eighteen applications were received for refund of the value of improvements on land applied for as homestead leases, and, taking into account 4 undisposed of on the 31st December, 1891, 18 were dealt with, leaving 4 outstanding at the close of the year. Action in respect of 216 transfers was completed during 1892, leaving 128 pending on the 31st December, 1892. (Schedule CXVI, CXVII.)

It has already been pointed out in the earlier Reports, that 413 homestead leases were brought under the provisions of Section 29 of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, with a view to a reappraisal and periodical revision of rent, &c., and that in 180 cases action was completed in 1891. During the past year 199 leases were thus reappraised and the new rents gazetted, particulars in respect of which are supplied in Schedule CXIX. In 112 cases, the reappraisal has resulted in an increase of rent; in 3 no alteration has been effected, while, in 84, the lessees have secured reduction in rent.

Special Purchases.

Applications to the number of 118, for the purchase of land, under the provisions of the 63rd, 64th, 66th, and 67th sections of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, were received during 1892, 12 being for the rescission of reservation of water frontage, 16 for permission to reclaim, 14 for the purchase of small areas unavailable for selection, and 76 for the purchase of unnecessary roads.

Including with the foregoing the applications made under the provisions of the 42nd section of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, and the 9th section of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861, an aggregate area of 266 acres 3 roods 12 perches was alienated, which (including penalties) realized the sum of £2,226 15s. 7d. The sale of 2 acres 1 rood 10½ perches in the County of Cumberland brought £1,488 2s. 9d.

The details relating to this class of business are shown in Schedules LVIII, LIX.

Surrenders and Exchanges.

The schedules in illustration of the business under this heading, for the sake of convenience, indicate the situation of the land proposed to be surrendered, whether wholly within the leasehold or wholly within the resumed area, or partly within one and partly within the other, but so far as the land to be acquired by the lessees is concerned it has to be borne in mind that it must be situated wholly within the leasehold area.

From the following it will be seen that 81 applications for surrender and exchange of land under the Crown Lands Act of 1889 were made during 1892; the area proposed to be exchanged being 198,698 acres.

During the year 37 applications were received to surrender land within resumed areas in exchange for lands within leasehold areas, and 60, some of which were outstanding on the 31st December, 1891, were in course of action, of which 11 were refused, 3 were withdrawn, and 46 were in various stages at the close of the year. (Schedules CV, CVI.)

Twenty-one applications were received to surrender lands within leasehold areas in exchange for other lands within leasehold areas. The applications under consideration during the year, inclusive of those outstanding from 1891, numbered 29, of which 9 were refused and 3 were withdrawn, leaving 17 undisposed of on the 31st December, 1892. (Schedules CIII, CIV.)

Twenty-three applications were reviewed to surrender lands situated within leasehold and resumed areas in exchange for other lands within leasehold areas. Taking into account the applications undisposed of on the 31st December, 1891, 3 were accepted, 5 were refused, and 3 withdrawn, leaving 25 outstanding at the close of 1892. (Schedules CVII, CVIII, CIX.)

Ninety-one applications for exchanges affecting an area of 80,074 acres within expired leasehold areas in the Eastern Division have not been completed. The Supreme Court having decided that an exchange cannot be given effect to after the expiration of the pastoral lease, the applications (which were made prior to the expiry of the leases in the Eastern Division), are held in abeyance pending legislation. (Schedule CXI.)

The applications to surrender lands under the provisions of the 75th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 accepted from the 1st January, 1885, to the 31st December, 1892, number 45 and refer to an area of 13,067 acres. (Schedule CX.)

Volunteer Land Order Applications.

During the year 10 applications were received for an area of 500 acres under the provisions of the Volunteer Regulation Act of 1867, and 10 (some of which had been made prior to 1892), containing an area of 500 acres, were satisfied, while 11, representing 550 acres, remained undisposed of at the close of the year.

The sum of £12 15s. was refunded, being the subdivision and survey fees paid with applications for grants of land in virtue of Volunteer Certificates which were refused. (Schedules LIV, LX, LXI.)

Cost of Survey.

In the Report for 1891 a comparison was instituted between the fees paid by applicants and the cost of survey to the Department showing a considerable share of the expense to be borne by the Crown. The average of the gross cost, however, is necessarily subject to fluctuations, which are governed in a great measure by the species of tenure for which the measurements have been effected. The surveys of the larger areas being the cheaper and having the effect, if they should predominate, of reducing it.

Schedule CXLVII exhibits in detail the cost of measurements, some of the surveys having been carried out during 1891, the accounts for which were rendered during 1892, and from this it will be observed that the average cost per acre for all classes of measurements was 5⁹/₁₆d. as against 5¹⁰/₁₁d. per acre for the previous year. The cost of survey per acre of conditional purchases and conditional leases approximates very closely to that of 1891, while that for homestead leases shows a perceptible reduction in 1892.

Annual Leases.

An area of 21,210 acres 2 roods, comprised in 40 lots, was offered at auction under the provisions of the 85th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, and 8, lots containing an area of 3,357 acres 2 roods, were sold at an annual rental of £144 18s. 10d. This shows a slight decrease on the business of 1891, when 34 lots, with an area of 10,890 acres 2 roods were disposed of at a rental of £227 12s. 3d. (Schedule LXV.)

The number of lots submitted to tender under the same section was 643, with an area of 540,791 acres 3 roods, resulting in 67 tenders being granted, representing an area of 54,626 acres 2 roods and an annual rent of £430 18s. 1d. This also exhibits a decrease compared with the transactions of 1891, which, however, may be accounted for by the fact that the provisions of the Crown Lands Act of

1889 enabling leases to be secured by application at an appraised rent are more acceptable by reason of the absence of risk which a tenderer incurs of being displaced by a higher bidder unknown to him. The following statement furnishes a comparison between the transactions of 1891 and 1892. (Schedule LXVI.)

During the year 2,578 applications for annual leases, representing an area of 1,768,807 acres 1 rood, were received, and 3,809 (which included some not finally disposed of on 31st December, 1891) for an area of 2,738,652 acres 1 rood came forward for consideration. Of these, 605 were either refused or withdrawn, and 1,656, for an area of 1,115,248 acres 3 roods 2 perches, granted at an annual rent of £8,883 12s. 3d., leaving 1,548 applications undisposed of at the close of the year. (Schedule LXX.)

The following statement shows the number of applications under section 33, C.L.A. of 1889, received since 1890. Further details are exhibited in Schedule LXX:—

Year.	No.	Area. Acres.
1890	1,186	955,467
1891	2,083	1,517,795
1892	2,578	1,768,807

Twenty-two leases, representing an area of 11,252 acres 2 roods 37 perches, were cancelled during the year, and 838, containing in all 532,244 acres and representing an annual rent of £4,315 19s. 1d., were notified as lapsed. (Schedule LXVIII, LXIX.)

The annual leases current on the 31st December, 1892, numbered 6,926, the total area being 4,589,729 acres, and the annual rent £33,627 9s. 7d. (Schedule LXVII.)

Inferior Lands Leases.

The character of the lands coming within the operation of the 37th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1889 has already been described in the Report for 1891.

During the year 11 applications for leases of inferior lands were under consideration, of which 8 were refused, leaving 3 outstanding at the close of the year. The area held under inferior lands lease on the 31st December, 1892, was 4,000 acres, comprised in one lease, and returning an annual rent of £16 13s. 4d. (Schedules CXXXVI, CXXXVII.) An area of 64,000 acres was offered during the year, tenders for which were accepted at the beginning of 1893.

Pastoral Leases.

On the 31st December, 1892, 1,042 pastoral leases were current, containing an area of 58,054,824 acres, and returning an annual rent of £380,018 17s. 4d. The subjoined comparative statement of the leases held in 1891 and 1892 in each of the divisions of the Colony, shows an increase in the rent, due for the most part, to the appraisements under the Crown Lands Act of 1889. Of the 1,002 leases brought under that Act, 556 were gazetted at the new rents during 1891, and 424 during 1892, making 980 altogether; and these represent 655 cases in which the new appraisement appraisement has benefited the lessees in the shape of a rent below what would have been chargeable under the Act of 1884; 286 cases in which the Crown was allowed a higher rent than that Act provided for; and 39 cases in which neither the Crown nor the lessees have derived any advantage. (Schedules XCV and XCVI.)

In order to dispel the impression which apparently prevails that a large number of the leasehold areas, particularly in the Western Division, have been abandoned, and that, therefore, large tracts (formerly held under Pastoral Lease) are now unoccupied waste lands, it may not be out of place here to remark that, since the Act of 1884 came into operation, only sixteen in the Central Division and eight in the Western Division have been forfeited. Of the former seven have been absorbed under other tenures, and of the latter six have been disposed of by auction or tender under Pastoral Lease, leaving nine in the Central Division, representing 185,000 acres, and two in the Western Division, representing 64,890 acres, not held under tenure at present.

Generally speaking, these areas comprise country reported to be "inferior," and their beneficial occupation will probably not be brought about until the law provides for a form of tenure suited to their situation and natural conditions. (Schedules LXXVII to LXXX.)

Occupation Licenses and Vacated Lands.

The subjoined schedule affords a comparison of the occupation licenses held during the years 1891 and 1892 respectively, and shows a decrease so far as 1892 is concerned. The falling off in the area held under occupation license is a necessary consequence from the increase of other tenures, and even when the entire area is not absorbed the balance frequently consists of such scattered blocks as to render the renewal of the license as a whole unprofitable. Apart from this, licensees are found to avail themselves of the privileges of section 33 of the Act of 1889, and to secure annual leases of such parts of their holdings as are best suited to their interests, leaving the Crown to obtain tenants for the remainder as best it may:—

It may be interesting to refer here to lands formerly under pastoral occupation which have become vacant through various causes, and for this purpose it is necessary to look back to the passing of the Crown Lands Act of 1884. After the completion of the division of the pastoral holdings under that Act there were 53 resumed areas, representing nearly 1,000,000 acres, for which no application for an occupation license had been tendered. Of these, 37, representing 672,000 acres, were in the Eastern Division; 13 representing 221,000 acres, in the Central Division; and 3 in the Western Division, representing 85,000 acres. Those in the Eastern Division have on several occasions been offered at auction and tender, but without much success. Reports have been obtained on the situation and character of these lands in the Central Division, and their disposal has been postponed in anticipation of early legislation, which is calculated to affect them. They are, however, now available for annual lease, conditional purchase, &c. The same remarks apply to those in the Western Division, except, of course, that they are not open to ordinary conditional purchase.

Since the passing of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 383 occupation licenses, representing about 8,000,000 acres, have reverted to the Crown. In the Eastern Division there were 238; in the Central Division, 112; and 33 in the Western Division. It is possible only to surmise the reasons which have influenced the licensees in giving up these resumed areas, but the small and disintegrated areas available in some cases, have, no doubt, tended to this result. The bulk of these lands are in the south-eastern part of the Colony, or the roughest parts of the north-eastern Coast District. Efforts have been made from time to time to find tenants for them. Some have been offered at auction or by tender on more than one occasion; whilst others—the better class of land—have been absorbed by conditional purchase, and conditional or annual lease, and have, consequently, disappeared from the official records as resumed areas.

In the Eastern Division 143 leaseholds (representing about 1,250,000 acres), which by effluxion of time expired in 1890, and became under the law “resumed areas,” were not applied for as Preferential Occupation Licenses, and thus ceased to produce rent as pastoral holdings. Of these, 66 (owing to selection, conditional and annual leases) have been effaced as resumed areas. Of the other 77, some, consequent upon the small and scattered areas available (ranging from 500 acres to 2,000 acres) and to the fluctuations by conditional purchase, &c., it has not been thought advisable to submit to lease by auction or by tender; whilst, in the remainder of the cases, the areas being larger, endeavours have been made, though without success, to put them under tenure by offering them as occupation licenses at auction, or by tender, on several occasions.

Of the Preferential Occupation Licenses, which succeeded the Pastoral Leases of the Eastern Division, many have disappeared from the maps, having been absorbed by selection and conditional lease, and 15, representing 249,000 acres, have lapsed, owing to default on the part of the licensee. Some of the latter areas have been twice offered by auction and tender as occupation licenses, at rates from £1 to 10s. per section per annum. In others, the area is too small to induce occupation as a whole, but the better parts are applied for from time to time as Annual Leases, at an appraised rental.

It is estimated that on the 31st December last there were about 11½ million acres of unrented lands which had been comprised in holdings not brought under the Act of 1884, or which had ceased to be so held after having been brought under that Act. About 2¼ millions were situated within reserves from sale. The remaining 9¼ millions included about 5¼ millions within the mountainous parts of the north-eastern and south-eastern portions of the Colony; with about 3½ millions of, for the most part, abandoned resumed areas in the Western Division. There are large tracts in the counties of Beresford, Wallace, Wellesley, Auckland, and Dampier, which at the passing of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 were not under tenure; and, so far as is known from official records, were never at any time under pastoral occupation of any kind. The same remarks apply to extensive areas in the counties of Raleigh and Fitzroy in the northern part of the Eastern Division; and also to parts of the counties of White and Baradine in the Narrabri and Pilliga Districts. The provisions of the present Crown Lands Acts do not seem to be sufficiently liberal to attract settlement, and hence further dealing with them awaits legislative action.

any

As instances of the attempts made to secure revenue from these lands, it may be mentioned that 197 occupation licenses, comprising an area of 4,130,929 acres, were either offered at auction or by tender during the year, but only 21, representing an area of 373,717 acres, were taken up. (Schedules LXXXIX and XC.)

In the County of Auckland 13 lots, comprising an area of about 446,000 acres, were offered by auction at an upset rental of £1 6s. 8d. per section, but no offer was made. The lots were again offered at the reduced upset price of 10s. per section, but still no offers were received. The land is now under offer by tender without a minimum upset price. The tenders close shortly.

In the Grafton Land Board District 89 lots, comprising an area of 1,763,000 acres, were offered for occupation license at upset prices ranging from £2 to 2s. 6d. per section. Of these 10 lots were sold aggregating in area 145,000 acres. The remaining lands are now submitted to tender without a minimum.

In the Armidale Land Board District 42 lots, containing an area of 1,354,000 acres, were offered for occupation license at upset prices varying from £2 to £1 per section. Only two were sold, and the remainder are now submitted to tender without a minimum price.

In the County of Beresford (Cooma District) 19 lots, with an area of about 170,000 acres, were offered at auction at prices ranging from £2 10s. to £1 13s. 4d. per section, only 2, however, containing 13,700 acres, were disposed of. The balance of the land is now under offer by tender, which close shortly.

General.

Refunds amounting in the aggregate to £29,516 14s. 3d., and having reference to the withdrawal of 3,836,573 acres for settlement by conditional purchase and other purposes from 1,034 pastoral leases and occupation licenses, were made to the persons concerned. The particulars of these are shown in schedule LXXVII, from which it will be observed that 105,081 acres, involving a refund of £2,440 3s. 9d., were withdrawn from 103 pastoral leases, and 3,731,492 acres, necessitating the repayment of £27,076 10s. 6d., from 931 occupation licenses.

In three cases subdivision of leasehold areas was applied for and completed during the year, and the transfer of 89 pastoral leases, 36 preferential occupation licenses, and 96 occupation licenses was given effect to during the same period. (Schedules LXXXI and LXXXIV.)

During the year 5 pastoral leases and 13 preferential occupation licenses were declared forfeited. The forfeiture of 1 pastoral lease and 1 occupation license was reversed. One application was tendered under section 33, and accepted for the preferential occupation license of the former leasehold in the Eastern Division representing an area of 24,000 acres, and an approximate rent of £28 2s. 6d. (Schedules LXXXV, LXXXVI, LXXXVIII.)

Ninety-eight occupation licenses were not renewed for 1892, but 31 of these were revived on payment of the necessary overdue rent. One pastoral lease, 5 preferential occupation licenses, and 16 occupation licenses were sold by auction during the same period. (Schedules LXXXVII, XCII.)

The appraisements under the Crown Lands Act of 1889 of 424 pastoral leases, 103 occupation licenses, and 214 preferential occupation licenses, were given effect to by notice in the Government Gazette during the year. (Schedules XCIII, XCIV, and CII.)

The cases dealt with by the Land Appeal Court under the Crown Rents Act of 1890 during the year numbered 6, relating to 5 pastoral leases and 1 occupation license. In respect of 4, the rate determined by the Court agrees with the Minister's rate, while in the remaining 2 the Minister's rate has been reduced. In connection with overpaid rents under the provisions of the Crown Rents Act of 1890, a refund of £267 15s. 10d., including £46 15s. 10d. interest, was made during the year in connection with 2 leasehold areas. (Schedules C and Cl.)

Residential Leases.

The provisions of the 48th clause of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, which extend the advantages of obtaining residential leases to holders of miners' rights were availed of in 70 cases. The applications received, with 82 outstanding on the 31st December, 1891, made a total of 152, representing an area of 1,370 acres 33 perches under consideration; of these 50 were either disallowed or withdrawn, and 38, comprising an area of 336 acres 26 perches, granted at an annual rent of £77 10s. 4d., leaving 64 applications in course of action at the close of the year. (Schedule CXXX.)

During the year 6 residential leases, containing an area of 55 acres 3 roods 17 perches, at an annual rent of £13 10s. 4d., were forfeited. (Schedule CXXXII.)

The residential leases current on the 31st December, 1892, numbered 65, representing an area of 587 acres 2 roods 13 perches, and an annual rent of £130 17s. 4d. (Schedule CXXXI.)

Snow Lands Leases.

The portion of the Colony over which this particular class of leases operates is restricted, to the contiguous parts of the Land Board Districts of Cooma and Wagga Wagga, and the variations in climatic conditions in surrounding districts also affect the demand for leases of this character. The business under this heading has consequently been nominal.

An area of 76,959 acres, comprised in 15 lots, was offered at auction, resulting in the sale of 4 leases, containing an area of 28,675 acres, at an annual rent of £59 14s. 0d. (Schedule CXXXIII.)

The leases current on the 31st December, 1892, numbered 22, representing an area of 90,785 acres and an annual rent of £910 1s. 2d. One lease, of an area of 2,440 acres and an annual rent of £43, was declared forfeited. (Schedules CXXXIV, CXXXV.)

Scrub Leases.

During the year 9 applications for an area of 77,832 acres 2 roods were received under the provisions of the 35th section of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, and from 1891 there were 14 outstanding, representing an area of 90,240 acres; of these 23 applications (representing an area of 168,072 acres 2 roods), 7 were either disallowed or withdrawn, and 3, comprising an area of 17,040 acres and an annual rent of £57 14s., granted, leaving 13 undisposed of on 31st December, 1892. Large areas of scrub and waste lands have been dealt with irrespective of formal applications, but it has not been considered advisable to deal with them under the present law. The cost of eradicating scrub appears to militate against operations under this class of lease, and the limited number of applications tends to indicate that the results expected do not recommend the necessary outlay on the part of lessees and others. (Schedules CXXII, CXXIII.)

At the close of the year 16 scrub leases were current, representing an area of 103,437 acres and an annual rent of £139 10s. 7d. (Schedule CXXIV.)

Special

Special Leases.

Under the provisions of the 89th and 90th sections of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, 232 applications for special leases were received in 1892, as against 354 lodged in 1891, and including with these such as were outstanding on 31st December, 1891, the number of applications requiring action in 1892 is brought up to 438. Of these 115, for an area of 3,407 acres 2 roods 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ perches, were granted at an annual rent of £1,651 9s., while 117, for an area of 6,684 acres 2 roods 20 $\frac{1}{2}$ perches, were either refused or permitted to be withdrawn, leaving 226, for an area of 6,531 acres 2 roods 33 $\frac{3}{4}$ perches, pending at the close of the year.

The special leases which expired on 31st December, 1891, numbered 42 for an area of 841 acres 3 roods 38 $\frac{3}{4}$ perches at an annual rent of £629.* Sixty-eight special leases, representing an area of 264 acres 3 roods 11 perches and an annual rent of £1,158, expired on the 31st December, 1892, and during the year 48 special leases, comprising an area of 707 acres 2 roods 34 perches and involving an annual loss to the revenue of £475 10s., were declared forfeited.

At the close of the year there were 512 special leases current, representing an area of 13,139 acres 3 roods 38 perches and returning an annual rent of £11,653 17s. 6d.

Details in respect of leases of this character are set forth in Schedules CXXII, CXXIII, CXXIV, CXXV, CXXVI, CXXVII, CXXVIII, CXXIX.

Expenditure.

The outstanding claims for 1892 services were estimated on the 31st December last to represent £58,000, so that when all the 1892 liabilities have been met, it is estimated that the total expenditure will amount to about £434,418 17s. 2d. Included in these figures is the sum of £9,668 1s. 2d. for Postage and Stamp Duties, as well as £2,152 13s. 9d. for advertising, paid from certain Treasury Votes; as also £683 11s. 8d. for survey fees paid from Trust Fund, and £301 7s. 2d. for similar services paid from applicants' deposits lodged to Suspense Account at the Treasury. These four items made up a sum of £12,805 13s. 9d., which being deducted from the total estimated expenditure, as above, leaves the sum of £421,613 3s. 5d. as representing the probable expenditure from the Appropriations of the Department.

As before stated, the votes passed and proposed for the year amount to £460,132 17s. 5d., which it will be seen is £38,519 14s. in excess of the estimated expenditure from the Department's votes, representing the balances of various votes which will not be required, and will ultimately be written off at the Treasury.

Compared with the actual expenditure for 1891, which amounts to £429,367 12s. 10d., the estimated total for all services for the year under review (£434,418 17s. 2d.) shows an increase of £5,051 4s. 4d. In respect of this increase, it should be explained that the ordinary expenses of administration show a decrease of £28,548 15s. 8d., the increase referred to having arisen owing to two items of extraordinary expenditure which were not incurred in 1891, viz., £10,000 for the acquisition of land for Public Parks and Recreation Reserves, and £23,000 for the erection of Rabbit-proof fences, viz., £33,600.

With reference to the salaries of Crown Land Agents and Assistants, it may be mentioned that 29 were paid wholly from the votes of this Department, 41 were paid jointly by this Department and the Department of Justice, while 22 were paid wholly by the latter Department—the salaries of the Offices being fixed with due regard to the dual duties, one set of which is usually insufficient to occupy the time of one Officer.

The efforts of the two Departments towards economy in this direction have resulted in a considerable reduction of expenditure, and the arrangement has so far worked satisfactorily. There are, however, still some matters in this connection which require adjustment.

* The reference in the Annual Report for 1891 in this connection in Schedule 93 should have stated the period as 31st December, 1890, and as 31st December, 1891.

Schedules are furnished (I to VIII), showing the "Expenditure for all services during 1892," "Salaries paid in the year 1892," "Revenue and Receipts for 1892," "Number of persons employed at the several Land Board Offices on the 31st December, 1892, with their annual rate of pay," "Number of officers employed in the District Survey Offices, and aggregate annual amount of salaries of each staff, including Branches and part branches not directly associated with the administration of the Crown Lands Acts, on the 31st December, 1892," and "Travelling expenses and fees paid in connection with Local Land Board Meetings during the year 1892."

The number of accounts dealt with in the Account Branch during the year was 15,411, representing payments to the number of 32,378.

As will be seen by reference to the subjoined table, the total sum voted on the Estimates-in-Chief for 1892 was £458,397, and the sum proposed to be voted in the Supplementary Estimates for the services of that year is £1,735 17s. 5d., in all £460,132 17s. 5d. The actual expenditure during the year amounts to £410,812 0s. 8d., made up as follows, viz., for the services of 1891 and previous years £31,423 3s. 6d., and for 1892, £376,418 17s. 2d.

RABBIT BRANCH.

The field staff at the disposal of the Rabbit Branch having been reduced to meet the bare requirements of the Rabbit Act, the information collected during the year is too limited to admit of a comprehensive statement being supplied as to the general progress and nature of the work being done in the extirpation of rabbits by the Crown lessees and others. It is gathered, however, from the reports of the Inspectors, that rabbit destruction still continues to be carried out with more or less activity over a large area of the infested country. As a rule operations are confined almost exclusively to the hot, dry months, when surprising results are obtained at a comparatively trifling cost. The remarks in this connection contained in the last Annual Report apply equally to the year under review, and therefore need not be repeated.

Notwithstanding the long stretches of wire-netting fencing erected during the past few years, by which the onward march of the rabbits has unquestionably been checked, evidence is not wanting that the pest is slowly but surely making its appearance in parts of the country hitherto regarded as uninfested; and the settlers on the outer edge of the Eastern Division so seriously apprehend its appearance as to deem it necessary to erect fences, such as those referred to. However, beyond all this, there can be no doubt that the work done in the erection of private and public barrier fences is of such a character that a wave of rabbits, similar to that which passed over the country in the years 1886 and 1887, is now scarcely probable.

With

With this Report will be found a map showing the boundary lines of holdings which are known to have been made rabbit-proof at the end of last year. The data for this map has been collected at great pains from various sources; and I have to acknowledge the kind assistance afforded by Messrs. Alex. Wilson, Cottee, and the managers of other institutions in the city, in supplying details relative to holdings which had not been visited by the Inspectors. It is hoped that the information given may prove of value to persons interested in the country included in infested areas.

Altogether, no less than 13,400 miles (including the barrier fences) of wire-netting have been erected; and, as the material is known to vary in character, both as regards the size of the mesh and the width of the netting, it may fairly be estimated that the cost in Sydney has not been less than £30 per mile. When to this is added the cost of carriage by rail and road, repairing old and erecting new fencing, rendering gates and watercourses rabbit-proof, and attaching the netting to the fences, it may be stated with safety that the total cost of this work has not been less than £50 per mile, so that it will be found upon this estimate that the rabbit pest has led to an expenditure of no less than £670,000, simply in an attempt to confine it within workable areas. One important use which the map fulfils is to indicate the localities where, by erecting small lengths of wire-netting fencing to connect with those already in existence, a number of continuous barrier lines can be formed, which, by checking the spread of the rabbits, will prove of great benefit to the country situated to the east of each such barrier; and in addition, it may be that an examination of the map may prevent the erection of costly fences in positions where they might be of little practical value.

The desirableness of continuing the barrier fence, extending from Barrington to Narromine, to some point on the southern boundary of the Colony, had for some time engaged the attention of the Department, and the necessity for the work having become more manifest from urgent representations made at public meetings held in various parts of the country, it was decided to complete the eastern barrier by attaching rabbit-proof wire netting to the existing fences along the western side of the railway reserve from Narromine to Corowa, via Blayney and Harden. The determination to adopt the railway route in preference to what might be a more direct line across country, was, to a certain extent, influenced by the fact that the existing fences were for a considerable distance in a thoroughly sound condition, thereby rendering unnecessary any considerable outlay in the way of repair. Another important consideration was the future care and maintenance of the fence, which will be most effectively secured at a trifling outlay by placing it under the control of the Railway Commissioners, as was done in the case of the Bourke-Narromine fence. With the object of giving effect to the decision, tenders were invited on the 27th of May last for the supply of 400 miles of galvanised wire netting of the following description:—42 inches wide, 1½ inch mesh, 17 gauge.

In response to the notice fourteen tenders were submitted, and after careful consideration, that of Messrs. Lysaght Bros. & Co. (Limited) to supply netting of the description before mentioned, containing 26½ meshes in a width, with an average of 670 meshes to the square yard, and an average weight of 1 ton 9 cwt. 18 lb. per mile, at a cost of £31 per mile, was accepted. Immediately upon it having been decided to erect the fence three Inspectors, then in the employ of the Department, were despatched to make an examination of the proposed route, and prepare specifications for the proper performance of all the works found to be necessary. In due course this preliminary task was completed, and specifications were adopted for the execution of the work in twelve sections as shown below:—

Having

Having regard to the periods within which the wire netting could be supplied by the manufacturers, tenders were invited for rendering rabbit-proof the various sections, and by the end of September operations had been commenced on several of the lengths. On the 31st of December last, no less than 118 miles of the barrier had been completed to the satisfaction of the several Inspectors, while the works upon an additional 80 miles of the line were in a forward state, so that altogether the progress made was of a satisfactory character.

The fencing provisions of the Rabbit Act apply only to lands situated within districts which have been declared to be infested, and during the year 1892 it was found necessary to extend the area already dealt with in this manner, by including holdings situated in the Land Districts of Bourke, Brewarrina, Brewarrina East, Cobar East, Walgett and Walgett North, and in portions of the Land Districts of Coonabarrabran, Coonamble, Dubbo, Moree, and Narrabri. Applications have been made to extend the infested area by bringing other districts within the scope of the 12th section of the Act, but action in this direction has been delayed until it can be shown that the adoption of this course would meet with the approval of such a proportion of the occupiers of the land as could be held to be fairly representative, as it has hitherto been the policy of the Department to refrain from saddling the Crown tenants with the cost of erecting expensive fences until it could be shown that the work was not only necessary, but that its performance would not press too severely upon the smaller class of settlers.

Permission to erect rabbit-proof fences along boundaries common to public and private lands was applied for in forty-five instances, and where the circumstances have been such as to warrant it, authority has been granted; but in the majority of instances the applications have been made in connection with abandoned resumed areas, or lands not reserved from lease or license under the Crown Lands Acts; and in these instances it has not been deemed expedient to incur any expense in making the boundaries rabbit-proof, until such time as the land has been offered under one or more of the various forms of tenure provided by the Acts.

Under the 41st section of the Act provision is made whereby persons resident in any city, town, or village may obtain permission to keep live rabbits, but during 1892 the privilege was only availed of in three instances, and then merely for experimental purposes. At the present time but two of the licenses are in force.

Notwithstanding that the offer of a reward for a scheme that would result in the extermination of rabbits was withdrawn in 1889, applicants for the reward are still to be found, and last year ninety-four of these schemes were received, but not one of them was of such a nature as to require more than passing consideration.

“Animals Infectious Diseases Act.”

During 1892 the provisions of the “Animals Infectious Diseases Act” were not brought into operation to any great extent, and only seven licenses were issued under the 6th section of the Act, and but two under the 7th section, as given in subjoined Schedule.

Report of the Chief Surveyor to The Under Secretary for Lands.

Sir, Department of Lands, Survey Office, Sydney, 22 February, 1893.

I do myself the honor of submitting for your information the report of the services performed in this branch of the Department during the year 1892.

The permanent field staff comprised fifty-one officers, who were classified as follows, viz., fourteen Staff district surveyors, and thirty-seven other salaried surveyors.

Mr. D. H. Murray, third-class surveyor, died on 9th July, 1892.

Deaths.

Mr. W. H. Foster, third-class surveyor, resigned on 31st January, 1892.

Resignation.

Mr. S. R. Beatty, fourth-class surveyor, was promoted to the third class, caused by the resignation of Mr. Foster.

Promotion.

Thirteen licensed surveyors were employed temporarily on salary; the services of two of them were dispensed with.

Surveyors temporarily on salary.

Fifteen of the junior licensed surveyors were employed as assistant surveyors attached to the parties of the salaried surveyors; there were three resignations and six new appointments to this staff.

Assistant Surveyors.

One hundred and thirty licensed surveyors were employed on contract surveys during the year.

Licensed Surveyors on fees.

Licenses under the Real Property Act were issued to 159 surveyors; the requisite fee of £1 1s. having been paid in each case.

Licenses under the Real Property Act.

One examination of candidates for licenses to survey Crown lands was held, viz., from 27th January to 5th February. The constitution of the Board was, at this examination different from former occasions, as two of the members were nominated by the Institution of Surveyors, which was for the first time officially represented.

Nineteen candidates presented themselves for examination, of whom ten were successful, viz. :—

T. W. Fowler.

W. U. Nowland.

H. Moorhouse.

J. S. M. Benson.

E. W. Ellis.

H. J. R. Jagd.

P. S. Hunt.

P. C. Riches.

W. L. Cooke.

J. H. Wood.

The proposal to hold a conference to consider and report upon several matters which come within cognisance of this Department had been brought under notice of the Minister in the early part of the year, and the proposal had been entertained, but was awaiting further consideration; action was expedited by the Surveyor-General of Queensland, who, after correspondence with other colonies, was duly authorised to convene a meeting at Melbourne. Upon further reference to the Minister he approved of the conference, and appointed Mr. R. McDonald, District Surveyor at Armidale, and the Chief Surveyor, as delegates on behalf of this Department; two other gentlemen, viz., Mr. Knibbs, the President, and Mr. Furber, the Honorary Secretary, having been appointed by, and on behalf of, the Institution of Surveyors of New South Wales.

Survey Conference.

The Conference, which comprised representatives from all the Australian Colonies excepting Tasmania, assembled at Melbourne on 31st October, 1892; and it is proper to record the fact that the delegates were met in the most courteous manner, and received a hospitable welcome by the representatives appointed on behalf of the Government and the Institute of Surveyors in Victoria, and that convenient arrangements had been made for business.

The delegates being all of them professional men of status, and mostly officers of long experience in conduct of Government Departments, the business was inaugurated in a practical manner and proceeded rapidly. A report was adopted containing in concise form the recommendations of the Conference, which report the Conference desired should be specially brought under notice of the several Governments who had sent representatives. A printed copy of this report was duly submitted to the Minister, under a minute by the delegates appointed by him, copies of both being hereunto annexed as an appendix.

The principal subjects dealt with by the Conference were: A common qualification for surveyors in Australasia, as a means to attain reciprocity in respect of professional service; this proposal is of public importance, and involves the constitution of a board having judicial functions in respect of granting license to practise, and suspension or cancellation thereof, for sufficient cause; which, it will be perceived, can only be attained by legislative enactment. Another matter which received much deliberation was the Hour Zone system of recording time, which will be of use mostly in arrangements for railway travelling and in telegraphy, and which has been adopted in the United States of America and some European countries, with much satisfaction to the public. The third most important matter discussed was the question of survey boundaries, viz., whether the boundaries of areas alienated by the Crown and marked on the ground, shall, as so marked, be preferred to such boundaries projected according to description in deed of grant, in cases where by these several methods they may not coincide. It is a matter largely affecting public interests, especially so if legislation thereon is retrospective in effect; in Victoria it is the subject of a special Act of Parliament, viz., "The Survey Boundaries Act, No. 855" and also in Tasmania, whilst in other colonies the matter has been left to the Law Courts to decide as to errors under the conditions mentioned, and is to some extent governed indirectly by Acts of Parliament bearing on titles to land.

There are several minor matters which are touched upon in the report of the Conference, which are all of them important as affecting the practice of survey, and as ensuring accuracy and good service to the public, and it is to be hoped that the report of the Conference may receive attention on the part of the Minister at an early date, inasmuch as the matter is of public interest, and it is felt that action taken by this Colony will be regarded as of weight.

TRIGONOMETRICAL SURVEY OF THE COLONY.

Field operations in this important survey proceeded in a satisfactory manner under the immediate supervision of Mr. J. Brooks, F.R.A.S., F.R.G.S.

The field staff comprised Mr. Brooks, who is the surveyor in charge, two observing surveyors, two overseers in charge of piling parties, and an additional overseer during the last quarter. Mr.

Mr. Brooks using the 18-inch altazimuth completed the observations at six stations of the south meridian series, viz.:—Wambook, Kosciusko, Numbla, Tingi Ringi, Substitute, and Bukalong; in the course of which work 2,752 horizontal angles and 379 vertical angles were measured, representing 14,134 micrometer readings, the stations observed to, number 108.

This work includes the requisite observations to combine the triangulation of New South Wales with that of Victoria.

The latitude and azimuth were observed at stations Wambook, Numbla, Substitute, and Bukalong.

In the counties of Hunter, Brisbane and Durham observations were completed at seven stations, viz.—Woodlands, Dangar, Balkau, Arthur, Skeletar, Dyrning, and Richardson; the observing surveyor measuring 3,326 horizontal angles with the 10-inch theodolite, and 50 with the 5-inch theodolite, and also 1,724 vertical angles.

In counties King, Murray, Camden, and Argyle, the requisite observations were completed at sixteen stations, viz., Bowning, Mundoonen, Chaton, Dixon, Cullarin, Martin, Jervisfield, Razorback, Ditton, Burragorang, Collong, Nattai, Gibraltar, Jellore, Gingenbullen, and Nundialla; the observing surveyor, using a 10-inch theodolite, measured 4,344 horizontal angles, and 1,435 vertical angles, in addition to which 1,399 angles were measured with a 5-inch theodolite.

In all cases where connections to trigonometrical stations did not already exist, the observing surveyor whilst at the trigonometrical station traversed the requisite connections to previous measurements, thus obviating the necessity for sending another surveyor for that purpose.

The piling overseers were engaged in clearing and forming stations in counties Wallace, Wellesley, Beresford, Auckland, St. Vincent, and Camden, and during the year completed sixty-two stations ready for observing.

In the latter part of the year the third piling overseer was appointed, and being a licensed surveyor his services were utilised in a satisfactory manner in carrying out connection surveys where requisite.

TRIGONOMETRICAL COMPUTING BRANCH.

Field-books of angle observations at the following stations have been received, namely:—Townsend Wambook, Kosciusko, Numbla, Tingi Ringi, Substitute, and Bukalong, on the south meridian series; Canemumbola, Bowning, Mundoonen, Chaton, Dixon, Cullarin, and Martin, on the series between Bathurst and the Lake George base: Jervisfield, Razorback, Ditton, Burragorang, Collong, Nattai, Gibraltar, and Jellore, in the county of Camden; Wambo West, Woodlands, Dangar, Overton, Balkau, Arthur, Skeletar, Dyrning, and Richardson, which are stations in the Hunter River District.

The observations at all these stations have been examined, and the results entered in the books of record; and also, in the duplicate books which are kept for safety in another building.

Computations of the positions of stations of the South Meridian series, which now extends to and connects with the trigonometrical survey of the Colony of Victoria, has been proceeded with as far as could be done in the absence of observations at stations Umaralla and the Peak.

It may here be mentioned that connection has been made with four stations of the Victorian triangulation. Also, particulars have been obtained respecting the Victorian survey, which will enable the series along the 150th meridian from latitude 33° S. to latitude 38° S., to be fully considered.

The completion of this part of the triangulation will be of much interest, as it will afford a convenient opportunity of entering upon consideration of the figure of the earth. This will be a matter of more than ordinary interest, on account of its being the first occasion on which satisfactory data will be available for determination of earth dimensions in this quarter of the globe.

The positions of all stations (113) of the recently observed system in the Western District, south from Bathurst, have been computed, and the co-ordinates are now available for the use of surveyors, and for map compilation.

Provisional co-ordinates of a number of stations in the Hunter River District, have been calculated. The final computation of this part of the triangulation, is, however, still delayed for the reason mentioned in my last annual report, namely, the want of observations at two important stations, Sugarloaf and Brokenback.

Notes of observations to determine the azimuth and astronomical latitude at stations Wambook, Numbla, Substitute, and Bukalong have been received. The places of stars observed at Wambook have been reduced, and the computations for that station, and the others named, are now being proceeded with.

The register of descriptions of stations Sydney and environs mentioned in last report as having been revised, has been printed during the year, and is now published. Copies of the descriptions of stations in and around Newcastle, Bathurst, and Albury, with their co-ordinate positions, have been prepared for publication.

Copies of the co-ordinates of stations have been supplied to other branches of the Department, and also, to other Departments of the Public Service. Reference bearings have, in the absence of a published register of stations, been supplied, as usual, for the information of surveyors and others.

It is, I think, desirable to mention, that "compilation of maps on the basis of the trigonometrical survey has been continued throughout the year." The advantages presented by maps so constructed will probably not be distinguished by many using them, but the greater facility of construction is fully appreciated by those engaged in the work of compilation, and such maps are found to be additionally economical by reason of the greater accuracy afforded which renders unnecessary the frequent recompilation otherwise required.

That other departments of the service avail themselves of the advantages offered by the trigonometrical survey, is shown by our being called upon during the year to supply information as to the triangulation of Newcastle and the Lower Hunter, to the Mines Department for use in preparing a map of that district; similar information respecting the same locality to the Department of Public Works, which had in contemplation an extensive survey of Port Hunter, and the lower part of the Hunter River; similar information about Sydney and Newcastle for the use of the Defence Department. It may also be mentioned, that heights of trigonometrical stations in the Shoalhaven District, have been supplied for use in the geological survey of the Colony.

INSTRUMENTS.

The large stock of surveying, astronomical, and other instruments belonging to the Department, has been kept in serviceable order during the year, and the needs of different branches have been met by the issue of such instruments as theodolites, standard tapes, arithmometers, &c. Arithmometers afford so much assistance in the somewhat laborious computations required to be made in the various District Survey Offices and elsewhere, that it was deemed advisable to replenish the stock by the purchase of three of Tate's improved arithmometers, and at the same time four worn-out instruments were sent to England to have recently-devised improvements added to them. The former have been found to work satisfactorily, and the latter are working so well that six other instruments out of repair have now been sent to Messrs. C. and E. Layton, of London, to be renovated in the same manner.

The large photographic camera belonging to this Department, which has for some time been kept at the Government Printing Office, was during the year placed in stock with the other instruments, in anticipation of its being utilised by this office as an additional means of map-production after completion of the new building where the necessary accommodation in the shape of a photographic gallery is provided.

A "Register of Leave" is kept in this branch, in which all leaves of absence granted to the permanent and temporary staff of the Survey Branch (field and office) are recorded.

DETAIL SURVEY.

During the past year the Detail Survey of the city and suburbs has been steadily progressing under the immediate supervision of the Surveyor-in-charge. Eight surveyors were engaged on this work until the beginning of September, when one was transferred to other duty.

The report forwarding the plan of an alignment survey of a number of streets at Redfern, the field work of which was carried out in 1891, has been received in connection therewith. It is satisfactory to note that the practice of conducting the detail and alignment surveys at one and the same time proved economical. Owing to the unsatisfactory character of some of the private subdivisions, more particularly with regard to the definition of street frontages, the dense population, and vested interest involved, their alignment was more than ordinarily troublesome, the short lengths of the building lines necessitating the use and fixation of an unusual number of alignment posts, rendering tedious the progress of the work. Notwithstanding those difficulties, the survey of 3 miles 73 chains, involving the fixation of 554 houses, locating and erecting 197 posts, was completed at a cost of 4s. per chain.

As the Detail Survey advances into the outlying suburban areas, the population becomes more scattered, and the tenements, consisting chiefly of gentlemen's residences standing in the midst of ornamental grounds, are individually more costly to fix than in the more densely built-over areas. In the course of the year's operations a large number of structures have been detailed to which the term "tenement" is not applicable; for instance, the railway stations at Ashfield, Croydon, Strathfield, and Parramatta, the Industrial School buildings, Lunatic Asylum and Gaol at Parramatta, Fort Macquarie, Public Baths (Cook's River), wharfs, &c., all of which occupied a considerable amount of time, demanded carefulness, and considerably increased the cost of the survey calculated on that basis. Experience goes to prove that as this class of survey advances into the less populous area its cost per tenement increases, whilst computed on an "area" basis it decreases.

The cost per tenement for new work in 1892 has been 16s. 9d., as compared with 15s. 6d. for 1891; 15s. 11d. for 1890; 15s. 8d. for 1889; 11s. 6d. for 1888; 17s. for 1887; and 23s. 8d. for 1886.

In consequence of alterations and the erection of new buildings occupied as business premises situated on some of the oldest detailed parts of the city, a mass of fresh surveys has been effected to enable the plans to be brought up to the requirements of the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage. These buildings cannot be fairly described as tenements, and, as a rule, take more time in survey than entirely new work; consequently there is a marked increase in the cost of this class of work computed on the "tenement" basis, viz., 25s. 10d. as against 13s. in the previous year. The cost of survey in connection with suburban areas is 14s. 10d. per tenement. The alterations and additions fixed this year are 6,208 against 3,294 in 1891.

As the field staff was smaller than in any preceding year, the area surveyed as well as the number of tenements fixed has decreased. The year's new surveys cover an area of 2,401 acres as against 3,772; acres in 1891, while the area resurveyed to bring existing maps up to date has been 453 acres in 1892, and in 1891 it was 777 acres; 113 sheets of new work, showing the full details of 2,477 tenements, have been received, in addition to which surveys for second editions of 32 sheets, showing 732 new tenements, and revisional surveys, prior to publication, of 160 sheets with 737 tenements erected since the date of original survey have also been completed.

The number of tenements fixed during the year has been—new work 2,477, in surveys for second edition 732, and in revision prior to publication 737, making a total of 3,946.

Incidental to the Detail Survey proper was the fixation of about 58 miles of streets, 3 miles of the banks of Cook's River and Parramatta River, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile of coast, 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles of tram lines, 3 miles of railway, and 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles of water-courses.

The

The distribution of the Detail Survey is shown in the following tabular statement, which does not include revisional surveys:—

During the year skeleton or standard surveys of Southern Alexandria and parts of Waterloo and North Botany, comprising a traversed length of 16 miles, have been carried out at an extremely low cost.

In addition to the detail and standard surveys enumerated above, a few other matters have been attended to by the officers of the Branch, as they could be carried out with special economy by the Detail Survey staff; amongst them may be mentioned the course of Shea's Creek Canal and Cook's River, as recently altered by the fascining of the banks by the Works Department; connections between the existing boundary stones at Parramatta and the detail and trigonometrical surveys, so as to obtain the absolute bearings and distances for the purposes of a reclamation of the borough; connections from the Strathfield and Concord surveys to trigonometrical stations X22, Y22, and W15; the course of extension of tram-lines from Leichhardt to Five Dock; redefinition and remarking of road of access to Rushcutter's Bay Park; inspection of and report upon proposed fencing of cemetery at Thirlmere, &c.

During the year there have been various changes in the personnel of the Drafting Branch, and an increase to its strength, with satisfactory results.

Altogether 87 plans or sheets of Detail Survey have been plotted and drawn, and the plans of two skeleton or standard traverses, in addition to which extra details have been placed on 51 plans of which second editions have to be published, and further information has been drawn on 146 plans prior to first publication.

With regard to the preparation of tracings, the increase on last year is marked; 104 sheets have been completed, and 63, the bare outline of which had been done by contract, have been perfected. In consequence of alterations effected to plans, of which the surveys have been revised, 187 tracings have been brought up to date by the addition of fresh work. Seventy-seven sheets, comprising 51 for first and 26 for second editions, have been forwarded to the Lithographic Branch, and there was in the branch a further number of 137 tracings ready for transmission. Forty detail sheets, comprising 28 first and 12 second editions, were published, making a total of 479 now published.

The information in the branch continues to be largely used by the public, especially by the surveyors in private practice, for the purposes of the Real Property Act, as 745 plans and 327 field-books have been referred to throughout the year; the number of plans of the Detail Survey used by the other branches of the head office, being 299.

Herewith is a tabular statement showing the comparative amount and cost of Detail Surveys from 1886 to 1889, inclusively:—

DRAFTING

DRAFTING BRANCHES.

During the first three months of the year, 1892, six draftsmen had to be taken from their ordinary duties in the Occupation and other branches in order to compute the amounts due by and to the Crown under the operation of the Crown Rents Act. Full particulars of this work may be found in the introductory part of the Annual Report for 1891.

The parish maps completed and published are appreciably in excess of last year's numbers.

Fewer County and Town maps were however published, partly owing to the preparation of some special maps for the Chicago Exposition and the revision of the Trigonometrical Register.

A new feature this year was the preparation of a number of special auction sale plans and posters, in order to better advertise the sale of lands of a more than ordinarily valuable character.

The six-sheet map of the city and environs was duly completed and printed by the close of the year and a vigorous canvas resulted in the receipt of 200 orders for the map at the price of £5 5s. per copy. Further sales will probably take place from time to time, and a number of copies will be required by other departments.

The miscellaneous business transacted in the Charting Branch exhibits a substantial increase upon last year's return, but fewer plans were received from district offices for charting.

The Roads Branch shows an increase in both the administrative and charting work.

The prompt disposal of the Crown Rents cases and the annual refund schedules has enabled the work of cataloguing and indexing field-books to be taken up by the Occupation Branch, and fair progress has been made with the older books.

The decrease in the work performed by the Lithographic Branch is more apparent than real, and is to be found in the smaller number of forms and circulars printed; apart from this unimportant item an increase of work has been in reality performed.

One candidate for temporary draftsmanship was examined and passed satisfactorily, but it is not probable that any further examinations of this kind will be held, as it has been decided to recruit the staff in the future from probationers.

Detailed statements of the work performed in the different branches follow; and maps are attached showing progress of the Colony map compilation, Land Districts and Land Board Districts to date, and a new map showing rabbit-proof fences so far as known to the Department.

MISCELLANEOUS CHARTING BRANCH.

No changes of importance in the personnel of the staff occurred during 1892.

A considerable number of applications for exchanges of land under section 46 of the Crown Lands Act of 1889, were received for preliminary investigation, several of them being referred to the branch more than once to work out alternate proposals and deal with other questions connected therewith.

Altogether 279 cases were received, representing a number of applications in their various stages, and of these 243 were disposed of during the year.

The new system of reserve posting, brought into operation at the beginning of 1891, has been found to work satisfactorily; but, though it was intended to commence the adaptation of the system to back years, the current work of the branch prevented this from being given effect to during 1892.

The notation on plans and office maps of confirmations of conditional purchases and conditional leases, and of the consecutive numbers gazetted in connection with conditional leases has received careful attention, and, although on the 18th of January, there were considerable arrears (745 schedules being then on hand), at the close of the year these had been reduced to forty, which included current work.

During the months of June, July, and August, the current work generally was interfered with, by the influx of cases to be scheduled for auction sale. Owing to the large number of papers of this class for gazetting, and in many instances, for additional information and sketches, and the rate at which it was necessary to dispose of them, the reserve charting, and other work of the branch in these months accumulated considerably, but the arrears were overtaken before the year closed.

During 1891, 125,030 acres were gazetted for auction, but for 1892, the total reached was 327,934 acres.

A considerable reduction has to be recorded in connection with the charting of new surveys, as compared with the previous year. In 1891, 11,300 plans were received representing 13,546 portions; the numbers for 1892 are 8,837 plans showing 12,814 portions. The cost under this head for the year was £480.

The preparation of Parliamentary and other returns occupied less time during 1892, than in previous years.

Among matters of a miscellaneous character which occupied the time of draftsmen, were:— Posting up resumption registers from 1881 to 1889 inclusively, and examining maps as to charting; Returns for the Public Works Department, of land alienated; projecting the outlines of a scheme for determining, more accurately than hitherto done, the area of alienated land within each county for publication in the Statistical Register.

It might also be added, that a considerable number of cases involving a large amount of noting on maps and plans, were dealt with during the year.

The following statement sets forth the classification and quantity of service performed during this and the previous year:—

	1891.	1892.

COMPILING

COMPILING BRANCH.

Miscellaneous Division.—This division is charged with the compilation and drawing of town, county, colony, and miscellaneous maps, and the charting of feature surveys, connection surveys, and new railway lines.

Sixteen new town and village maps have been compiled and drawn, including Carrington, Orange, St. Leonards, &c., and one map charted up for new edition.

Six county maps have been completed, viz., Argyle, Fitzroy, Raleigh, Clarence, Manara, Farnell, and the standard map of Yancowinna charted up for new edition.

The map of the County of Cumberland has been compiled, and is now being drawn for photo-lithography.

The progress made on the new Colony map compilation is shown on the appended sketch map.

Ninety-four plans of feature surveys and connections, comprising 605 miles of survey, have been charted. Four proclaimed railway lines and one railway trial line have also been charted.

Maps of the Land Board Districts of Armidale and Grafton have been completed. A number of miscellaneous maps have also been prepared, including a map of Australia, and eleven miscellaneous maps for the Chicago Exposition, a chart of part of the coast line to accompany a pamphlet on our fisheries, railway maps, rainfall maps, auction sale plans, maps for Parliamentary Committees, and others of minor importance.

The whole of one officer's time and portions of others' have also been devoted to the charting of plans of connections to trigonometrical and astronomical stations on the general maps of the office, and the revision of the Trigonometrical Register.

Parish Map Division.—This division is exclusively engaged upon the compilation and charting-up of parish maps for publication.

The total number of maps completed during the year is in excess of the previous year's return, the numbers being—

	1891.	1892.
Parish maps compiled... ..	192	210
Parish maps prepared for new edition	121	107
	<hr/>	<hr/>
	313	317

The above comprise maps in all the Board Districts except Bourke, but the greater number are in the more settled districts, and are, consequently, of an intricate nature. The standard parish maps now number 2,136.

Fewer heliographs were prepared than during 1891, 2,330 copies having been printed at an average cost of 1s. 8d. per copy. The prints, are, however, nearly all of large size, the majority being detail sheets, road plans, and alignment plans.

The schedule of county, town, parish, and miscellaneous maps printed during the year will be found under the head of Lithographic Branch.

LITHOGRAPHIC BRANCH.

The business of this branch shows a slight decrease below that of 1891, in the number of maps, plans, and documents printed for issue and publication. The following returns in tabular form show the published results of compilations, at the head office, of county, town, parish, and miscellaneous maps, together with the printing of work for other departments, official forms for departmental use, and of plans drawn by surveyors for reproduction.

These maps and plans are either lithographed in the branch, or by the aid of photo-lithography at the Government Printing Office, they are completed here, and printed from stone or zinc plates.

For convenience of official record lithographs are classified thus:—1. Counties; 2. Towns; 3. Parishes; 4. Auction sale plans; 5. Miscellaneous; 6. Other Departments; and 7. Official forms.

1. Counties.

County lithographs show measured areas, roads, reserves, features, and all other information which is capable of delineation on a scale of 2 miles to an inch. They are published at five shillings per copy. Copies are also printed on a reduced scale of 8 miles to an inch, which are used for office purposes only.

Six county maps were completed during the year, comprising 1,100 printed copies.

Clyde*	Clyde	Kennedy.*
Northumberland*	Sandon*	Sandon.

Of these maps, those indicated by the asterisk are on the scale of 8 miles to an inch.

2 Towns.

Town lithographs show the general design, measured lands, and names of purchasers, reserves and dedications within town and suburban limits; they are usually photo-lithographed from compilations made at this office or from the surveyors' original plans, to the scales of 4 or 8 chains to an inch and sold at one shilling per copy.

Thirty-three towns were completed during the year, comprising 4,050 printed copies.

Alma	Coonabarabran	Helensburgh West	Tinonee
Appin	Coraki	Ivanhoe	Tarrowangee
Barnedman	Cordillera	Maroota	Trundle

Broulee	Euston	Picton	Wombat
Buri	Gol Gol	Raymond Terrace
Camberwell	Gooloongolah	Richmond
Canowindra	Helensburgh West	Tambaroora

Names repeated show that two editions have been printed during the year.

3. Parishes.

Parish maps are compiled to a scale of 20 chains to an inch, for office use, and then, with few exceptions, reduced to 40-chain scale for publication and sale at 1s. per copy.

Three hundred and eighteen parishes were completed during the year, comprising 27,497 printed copies.

4. Auction Sale Plans.

Lithographs of all lands measured for auction are printed for use at auction sales, and are sold at 1s. per copy.

One hundred and ninety-five auction sale plans were completed during the year, comprising 15,415 printed copies.

5. Miscellaneous.

In this class, during the year, the principal maps printed have been:—6-sheet map, in colours, of Sydney and environs; 62 sheets of the detail survey of the city and suburbs; 6-sheet trigonometrical map of New South Wales; index map to sheets of the detail survey of Sydney and suburbs; county plans of occupation licenses; Newcastle Pasturage Reserve; drawings of rabbit-proof gates; 2-sheet map of country between George's River and Broken Bay, showing trigonometrical stations; map of New South Wales, showing stock routes, &c.; maps of snow leases; and maps to illustrate Annual Report of Department of Lands for 1891.

One hundred and five miscellaneous maps, &c., were completed during the year, comprising 20,484 printed copies.

6. Other Departments.

Maps, plans, and diagrams have been printed for the departments of Colonial Secretary, Treasurer, Mines, Public Works, Water Supply and Sewerage, Government Statistician, Postmaster-General, Commissioners for World's Columbian Exposition, and the Railway Commissioners, embracing principally compilations of sheets of the detail survey of suburbs of Sydney, on 2-chain scale for sewerage purposes; plan of National Park; New South Wales, showing artesian wells; postal map of New South Wales; orchid drawings; maps and diagrams connected with census report; maps and plans for distribution at the Chicago Exposition; railway diagrams of grades; railway maps, showing coaching routes of New South Wales, and railway systems of Australasia; working drawings of bridges and map of New South Wales, showing timber areas.

Fifty maps, plans, and diagrams were completed during the year, comprising 56,743 printed copies, for other Departments.

The approximate value of the work, including drawing, printing, paper, and supervision, amounted to £625 10s. 8d.

7. Official Forms.

These forms comprise circulars, decisions, forms, and memoranda required for use at head-quarters and at country offices.

One hundred and seventeen official forms were completed during the year, comprising 66,665 printed copies.

A greater degree of economy and efficiency is attained by the employment of contract draftsmen on certain classes of miscellaneous work, principally comprising the sheets of the detail survey of the city and suburbs, which are usually drawn on zinc by private persons or firms outside the office, and the copies printed here.

Contracts are rarely made for printing work, the modern machinery now in stock being ample for all purposes.

Contractors for lithographic work received the sum of £1,306 19s. 5d., of which sum the drawing contracts amounted to £1,303 9s. 11d., and the printing to £3 9s. 6d.

ROADS BRANCH.

This branch deals with applications for survey and opening of roads through alienated lands, and after survey, takes necessary action towards the establishment of such roads under the Acts 4 William IV. No. 11., and 53 Victoria No. 21. It has also to consider all objections, &c., which may be made with regard to the resumption and opening of such roads, and applications for land in lieu of the area so resumed. It deals with applications for the survey and alignment of streets under Act 2 Victoria No. 2; with applications for the purchase of unnecessary roads under 67th section of Act 48 Victoria No. 18; with applications for permission to erect public gates under Act 39 Victoria No. 10, and with various other matters having reference to roads and streets, &c.

The number of applications for surveys of roads and streets received during the year was 300; the number of surveyor's reports received and dealt with (exclusive of reports transmitting plans of surveys) was 475; 335 plans showing 836 miles of road survey, and 35 plans showing 313 streets as aligned for carriage and foot-ways, were received; 72 applications for public gates and 90 applications for the purchase of unnecessary roads were dealt with; also 296 objections and claims had to be considered; and numerous applications and letters, which were sent in asking for information with regard to road and street matters, had to be answered.

Papers having reference to roads, streets, and gates, in number about 6,926, have been registered in this branch during the year; which, together with 537 papers registered in other branches, make a total of 7,413 papers received and dealt with, being an increase of about 1,000 on the number received during the year 1891.

OCCUPATION DRAFTING BRANCH.

The general work of this branch has been similar to that of previous years.

The indexing and cataloguing of the old field-books, some of which date back to the year 1794, have been proceeded with.

During the first quarter of the year four officers from this branch (one being in charge), together with six other officers, were engaged as a special staff in making the necessary computations for determining the amounts due under the Crown rents' Act to or from the pastoral lessees. In carrying out this work the greatest care and accuracy were necessary owing to the intricate nature of the accounts; and it is therefore satisfactory to note that in the few instances where the lessees challenged the accuracy of the official calculations no difficulty was experienced in proving their correctness.

Interest tables for the use of Crown lands agents were computed, showing the interest payable at 5 or 4 per cent. on any amount from one penny to £2,000, for any number of days up to one year. These tables, the printing of which in book form is now almost completed, represent a very considerable amount of careful work, and will, no doubt, prove very useful.

About 1,700 calculations of refunds due have been made; this number being considerably in excess of previous years.

Two hundred and six miles of pastoral holding boundaries have been surveyed, at a cost of £599, of which, the sum of £207 5s. 6d. was recouped from the lessees; also, sums were recovered from the pastoral lessees, viz., £146 for the survey of 145 miles of pastoral holding boundaries common to homestead leases, and £164 7s. 9d. on account of surveys made by salaried surveyors.

Plans of ninety abandoned resumed and leasehold areas were prepared and forwarded to the District Surveyors for report as to the best means of disposal.

A map has also been prepared showing the rabbit-proof fences in existence (about 10,000 miles), and will shortly be ready for issue.

The following schedule shows the principal items of business dealt with during the year:—

MISCELLANEOUS CONTRACT BRANCH.

The number of drawings prepared is somewhat greater than the number prepared in the preceding year, while the number of applications dealt with exceeds the number dealt with in 1891 by 591.

During the year the practice was initiated of making standard tracings of plans of roads and of alignments of streets, in order that heliographic copies of such plans might be obtainable at any time at little cost. Two hundred and fifteen of these carefully-prepared tracings were made, some of them being very large.

A considerable portion of the time of the officers on salary was spent in making various illustrative drawings to accompany cases to be submitted to the Minister, and cases to be referred to other departments. Altogether 878 drawings were made by officers on salary.

At the close of 1892 there were no applications undealt with, except such as had been received in the branch during the last week of the year.

APPENDIX.

INTERCOLONIAL SURVEY CONFERENCE.

Min. 92,9110.

On the 11th August last the Minister for Lands was pleased to appoint us as delegates, representing the Lands Department of New South Wales, to the Intercolonial Conference of Surveyors, which was convened at Melbourne during the month of November last, and at which other Australasian Colonies were represented, viz., Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and New Zealand. We have the honor to enclose herewith two copies of the report of that Conference, and respectfully submit for consideration the several recommendations contained therein; and would urge the desirableness of taking such steps as shall be requisite to carry them into effect.

We would beg to offer a few remarks touching the matters discussed, which may be regarded as of the most importance to this Department.

Land Surveyors' Act. Recommendations 1 to 12.

The Conference adopted a memorandum or draft of provisions to be embodied in legislative enactment, with the object of attaining reciprocity in respect of practice for land surveyors in the several Australasian Colonies, and of ensuring efficiency by constituting a Board of Control for each Colony having judicial functions, viz., to examine and grant certificates of competency, i.e., license to practise, and to deal with cases of professional misconduct, thus to secure to the public trustworthy and efficient service. This may perhaps be regarded as the most important result of the deliberations of the Conference, and it may be pointed out that when carried into effect such a measure will relieve the Lands Department of embarrassment in dealing with incapable or unworthy practitioners, and also that the proposed enactment will not interfere with the prerogative of the Minister to grant the license to survey Crown lands.

Survey Boundaries Act. Recommendation No. 13.

It will be observed that it is proposed that authority to practise under the 100th section of the Real Property Act shall be conveyed by the license hereafter to be granted. It is felt that there will be no risk to the public incurred by this alteration as the powers to be conferred on the Board of Control will be of such character as to ensure competency as far as it is possible to do so.

Another matter of special interest to this Department is recommendation No. 15, which is founded upon the Survey Boundaries Act of Victoria (No. 855) which has previously been under your notice. This Act was intended to provide the means of settling the frequently recurring disputes concerning boundaries of grants. The Conference attached much weight to this matter, and it may be deemed of such importance as to merit further notice.

It may be premised that in all measurement of land there is some imperfection, that error of more or less extent may be expected, that the more exact the survey the greater will be the cost; therefore it is requisite to meet requirements of settlement by prescribing certain reasonable limits or allowance for error, i.e., to define the meaning of the phrase commonly used "be the same admeasurement a little more or less" within which for the future, measurement may be regarded as practically correct for purposes of alienation, and also to prevent litigation, and, as far as possible, to assure proper protection of boundary marks by proprietors, by enacting that such boundary marks, where proven, shall be accepted in preference to those projected from the description of metes and bounds in the deed of grant, in cases where the boundaries, under these different circumstances, may not coincide. It may be remarked that on account of more exact means and improved mode of survey, and in view of the safeguards to be provided under the proposed Surveyors' Act before mentioned, there was general expression of confidence in the probable useful effect of the proposal.

It

It may be pointed out that an express enactment will be requisite to attain what is desired, for the reason that the decisions of the Law Courts in this Colony, and the practice established, is to give the preference to the rectilinear metes and bounds described in the deed rather than to survey marks; and inasmuch as the laws and practice of the various colonies affecting this matter are diverse, and careful investigation would be requisite to indicate any amendment of existing laws or new legislation, the Conference felt it could not do more than recommend, in general terms, the object to be attained.

Regina v. Cooper.
N.S.W. Law
Reports, Vol. vii,
fo. 15 (1888.)

It is to be borne in mind that, in this Colony, there is a law which enables corrections of manifest errors in deeds of grant, viz., the Titles to Lands Act, 22 Victoria No. 1, to which recourse has been had frequently of late years; also, there is provision in the Real Property Act, 26 Victoria No. 9, which enables the correction of minor mistakes; and also, there is an Act, 3 and 4 William IV., c. 27, which limits action in respect of recovery of real estate to a term of twenty years. Consequently, there may not be as weighty arguments to support such legislation in this Colony, as elsewhere; and should such enactment as that contemplated by the Conference be entered on, it should be a subject for very careful consideration whether it should be retrospective in its action.

As to grants based upon surveys effected of late years or hereafter to be effected under the mode of license to practise now proposed, little or no risk or difficulty need be apprehended, for the reason that there will be a means of punishing surveyors for erroneous or faulty work, which hitherto has been wanting.

It is scarcely requisite to state, that for the successful carrying out of legislation such as that proposed, it will be necessary to maintain regular and systematic inspection of every surveyor's work, even as now is the practice of this Department; and it is to be borne in mind that it will become the more imperative in the public interest.

The recommendation for inserting permanent marks, so as to enable recovery of the alignment of a town, is based upon a necessity which becomes daily more apparent. With respect to the subdivision of alienated lands, it will, it is thought, be necessary to obtain an amendment of the Real Property Act; and, with respect to Government towns and other subdivisions of Crown lands, the insertion of the requisite permanent marks may be attained by instructing the District Surveyors who are in a position to provide for such in any contract for survey to be let; and in respect of survey generally, the requisite directions may be conveyed by a circular. At present, under the regulations of this Department, such permanent marks as are intended are provided only in the measurement of homestead leases and feature survey. The immense advantage to be thus secured to the public becomes of national importance, viewed in its aspect of enabling the identification or recovery of boundaries, when in the process of settlement and occupation the original marking of the same (as now prescribed by Departmental survey regulations) becomes destroyed.

Permanent reference marks
for surveys, and protection of the same. Reconmendations Nos.
14, 15, 16.

The desirableness of laying down in suitable places and in a proper manner a standard measure of length for adjustment of surveyors' apparatus is so patent and so necessary for the public protection, that it needs no further comment on our part to emphasize the importance of action being taken, and the matter should receive immediate attention on the part of the Chief Surveyor, by a separate report as to the most advisable course to pursue in this Colony.

Standard measure for reference.
Recommendation
No. 17.

The intention of the Conference was also to bring under notice the desirableness of legalising, as a standard of length, the copies of the 10-foot ordnance survey bar of Great Britain in places where they may have been obtained, e.g., Sydney and Melbourne. This measure of length has been determined with extreme care, and it is held by many that it should by law be adopted as a standard of reference for land survey, so as to prevent possible contention. At present, in New South Wales, the standard measure of length is the "yard," deposited at the Treasury under authority of the Act 16 Victoria No. 34, which is sufficient for ordinary commercial purposes, and even for ordinary land measure, but which would be useless for trigonometrical survey, and, in fact, was never intended for such a purpose. The reasons for adoption of a common standard for geodetic survey purposes are strengthened by the probable federation of the Australasian Colonies.

The Conference has drawn attention to the desirableness of completion of the topographical, geological, and trigonometrical surveys. In respect of topographical survey much has to be done in this Colony, as our maps are but diagrams showing the boundaries of alienated lands, and are deficient in important information, viz., altitudes above sea-level and proper representation of the mountain ranges and hills. It is felt that this information should be introduced, and it is pointed out that much of it may now be available, and needs only collection and revision in order to be utilised. This may be supplemented from time to time as surveys for public works proceed, and will be then ready for, and will become the basis of proper representation of the features of the country, when the staff of this Department is in a position to take up this branch of the business.

Extension of
survey, &c.

The geological survey is conducted under the Mines Department, and no doubt such steps are taken as are practicable to incorporate on the maps the latest information; that Department might be apprised of the recommendation of the Conference.

The trigonometrical survey is now proceeding in this Colony and Queensland, and when the results are obtained in connection with the survey of Victoria, there will be the means of treating of several geodetic problems of world-wide interest, besides meanwhile affording the data for accurate construction of maps to meet immediate requirements of settlement.

The Conference deprecates the system of competitive tender for survey, which has obtained in certain colonies and has led to disastrous results. Of course, this recommendation has to be accepted with discrimination, and must be modified to suit the circumstances of survey prevailing in a colony; it is a system which has not been pursued beyond proper bounds in this Colony, and it cannot be abolished where there are local increases to the contract scale ranging up to 100 per cent. It is the system of indiscriminate competitive public tender which meets with condemnation of the Conference. Moreover, it is not to be overlooked that the precautionary check to be introduced under the Surveyor's Act, which is proposed by providing the means of protecting the public and the Government, will prevent bad work and thus neutralize any evil which may be incidental to competitive tender.

Competitive
survey.

The hour zone system of recording time met with the support of the Conference, and three zones are recommended for adoption for Australasia, as it was urged, that the adoption of universal time for the continent would be too sudden a departure from preconceived ideas and habits of the people to meet with public approval. It is a matter specially affecting the arrangements for railway travelling and system.

telegraphy,

telegraphy, and it will need legislative enactment for the reasons that local time and Sydney mean time have been prescribed under certain duly authorised regulations, Acts of Parliament or practice of the Courts of Law. It may be specially pointed out that the principle of common or universal time has already been recognised under the Crown Lands Acts of this Colony, whereby Sydney mean time is directed to be recorded in all matters of business by the Crown Lands Agents.

It is submitted that the report of the Conference be communicated through the Government to the executive officers of other Departments of the Public Service which are concerned, who might be moved to report in respect of the several matters which may come under their cognizance respectively, viz.:—the Registrar-General, as to survey under the Real Property Act; the Secretary to Department of Justice; the Secretary to the Post Office; the Superintendent of Electric Telegraphs; and the Chief Commissioner for Railways as to hour zone system of recording time; the Government Astronomer as to the hour zone system; and the adoption by law of a standard of length for survey purposes, other than the "yard" at the Treasury; the Astronomer being the custodian of the copy of the Ordnance survey bar.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA—

Government and Institute—J. S. Brooking, Deputy Surveyor-General, President, Board of Examiners, and Vice-President, West Australian Institute of Surveyors.

Mr. R. L. J. Ellery, C.M.G., was unanimously elected President.

The Conference after full and careful consideration of the subjects placed before them unanimously recommend as follows:—

1. That reciprocal recognition by each colony of certificates of competency to survey issued by the other colonies is desirable.
2. That the Board of Examiners for each colony should be a corporate body constituted by Act of Parliament, and empowered
 - (a) To conduct examinations and otherwise inquire into the competency of gentlemen seeking the right to practise as surveyors, and to certify as to the results of such examinations and inquiries.
 - (b) To issue licenses authorising the holders thereof to practise as surveyors, in the colony for which the Board is authorised to act, to gentlemen holding any of the following qualifications:—
 - I. A certificate of competency issued under subsection (a) by any of the Australasian Boards of Examiners.
 - II. Any qualification which in the opinion of the Board of Examiners is equivalent to a certificate of competency issued by the Board.
 - (c) To enter the names of all gentlemen to whom licences under subsection (b) have been issued in a book, to be called the "Surveyor's Register."
 - (d) To suspend or cancel any surveyor's licence, and to remove the surveyor's name from the "Surveyor's Register" during the suspension of his licence (or permanently in case such licence has been cancelled) where, after due inquiry, it is shown that—
 - I. The surveyor has wilfully and improperly certified to the accuracy of any survey or plan knowing the same to be incorrect or without taking reasonable precautions to verify its accuracy, or,
 - II. Surveys effected by or under the direction of the surveyor are inaccurate and untrustworthy, or
 - III. The surveyor has been registered and obtained his licence by fraud or has been convicted of felony, or
 - IV. His name has been removed from the "Surveyor's Register" of any of the Australasian Colonies and his licence suspended or cancelled.

3. That the Board for each colony (consisting of not less than five qualified persons) should be appointed by the Governor-in-Council. Of these not less than one-half should be nominated by the Council of the Institution of Surveyors, or other recognised body representing the practising surveyors of the colony, and the remainder should be nominated by the professional head of the Survey Department.
4. That the regulations for examination for surveyors, the subjects for examination, and the standard of efficiency required throughout the Australasian Colonies, should be identical. The draft regulations attached to this report are recommended for adoption,
5. That no alteration should be made in the regulations or subjects for examination, without the consent of a majority of the Board of Examiners.
6. That simultaneous general examinations for land surveyors should be held in the various colonies, the papers for such examinations being prepared by a committee consisting of one representative from the Board of Examiners of each colony.
7. That the examinations should begin on the first Tuesday in the month of September of each year, and, in case additional examinations be found necessary, that such additional examinations should begin on the first Tuesday in the month of March following. Provided, however, that should either of the days named be a public holiday in any one colony, the examination should begin on the first day thereafter which is not a public holiday.
8. That the Board of Examiners for each colony may, at its discretion, issue a certificate of competency, under the regulations adopted by the Australasian Boards, to any applicant now holding a certificate as a qualified surveyor in such colony either with or without examination or upon passing such portions of the examination prescribed in the regulations as the Board may in his case require. Provided that the certificate shall be conferred without examination, only when there is no reason to doubt that the qualifications required by the regulations are possessed by the applicant.
9. That any surveyor, holding a certificate prior to the reconstitution of the Boards, who does not obtain a certificate under the provisions of the preceding recommendation, should be entitled to continue to practise in, and to have his name enrolled on the Survey Register of the colony only for which his certificate was issued.
10. That only surveyors licensed and registered by the Board of Examiners for any colony should be permitted to practise under the Real Property and Transfer of Lands Acts in such colony.
11. That the license to practise as a surveyor in any colony should include the right to practise both as a surveyor of Crown lands, and as a surveyor under the Real Property and Transfer of Lands Acts.
12. That no future surveys by unlicensed persons affecting titles to land should be recognised.
13. That Crown survey boundaries as marked on the ground (except in cases of fraud) should be unalterable and accepted, and that, where necessary, deeds should be corrected to agree with such boundaries.
14. That before plans of any township are received into the Lands Titles Office or General Registry Offices for deposit, at least four permanent marks should be laid down in the township, referred to on the plans; and, where found necessary, Acts of Parliament should be amended so as to allow this recommendation to be carried out.
15. That the Surveyors-General for the various colonies be requested to have at least four permanent marks, wherever possible, consisting of hard stone or cement or other suitable material, laid down in every newly surveyed Government town at the time of survey, and referred to upon the original plan; and that when Crown lands are being cut up for suburban or country sections occasional permanent marks be laid down and also referred to upon the original survey plans.
16. That, where original survey marks now exist upon alienated lands, the public bodies under whose control the said lands are placed should take immediate steps to either preserve such marks or have their positions fixed by means of permanent marks.
17. That the legal measure of length used in all Australasian surveys being the English measure of length, as provided by English Statute law, standards 66 feet and 100 feet in length, in terms of such legal standard, should be established in the principal Australasian cities and adopted as the standard of surveys in all the colonies.

The Conference would urge on the Governments of the various Australasian colonies the necessity of completing, as far as possible, the topographical and geological surveys of their respective territories, seeing that the information obtained from such surveys would frequently enable engineers to save large sums of money in carrying out important national works, and, in addition, would provide valuable information in connection with the development of the mining resources of the country.

The Conference would further urge the desirableness of extending and connecting the trigonometrical surveys of the colonies, as by this means the measured bases could be utilised as bases of verification, and the results applied to statutory surveys when such may be decided upon, as well as the elucidation of many points in connection with the figure of the earth.

The Conference views with disapproval the system in vogue in many of the colonies by which Government surveys are tendered for competitively, and recommends that this practice be abolished.

The Conference is of opinion that a standard of time should be established throughout the Australasian Colonies on the basis of the hour zone system of time computed from the meridian of Greenwich. The adoption of such a standard would not only facilitate the internal business of each province, but would be a great convenience in connection with railway and telegraphic communication between the colonies.

That for this purpose the true mean time on the 150th meridian east of Greenwich should be adopted as the standard of time for all railway, telegraphic and other purposes, and that it should be made the legal standard of time within the colonies of New South Wales, Tasmania, Victoria, and Queensland. Also that South Australia should adopt the same time, or the mean time of the 135th meridian, which is exactly one hour later, and that West Australia should adopt the mean time of the 120th meridian, which is two hours later.

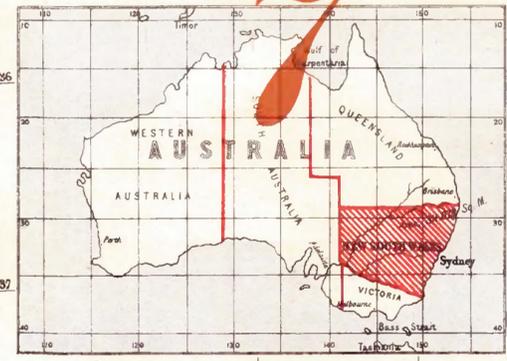

The

The Conference considers it desirable to submit, with other papers accompanying this report, a draft memorandum for a Bill including recommendations with reference to the issue of survey licenses, and which, it would recommend, should be given effect to by the various Colonies at the earliest convenient date.

The members of this Conference wish to urge on their respective Governments the importance of uniformity in the issue of certificates to surveyors, of uniformity in the trigonometrical, topographical and geological surveys of Australasia, and of the adoption of the hour zone system of time, on the basis of the foregoing recommendations, and submit that it is important that there be early legislation, where requisite, for securing these objects.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

VILLAGE AND INDUSTRIAL SETTLEMENTS.

(REPORT ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1893.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 17th May, 1893, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“The report of Mr. Lewis on Village and Industrial Settlements as conducted in New Zealand and Victoria.”

(Mr. Alfred Allen.)

The District Government Officer to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Local Government Office, 22 July, 1892.

In accordance with instructions, I made inquiries with reference to the village homestead special settlements of New Zealand, but regret that owing to other duties the time at my disposal did not enable me to visit all the centres of this peculiarly interesting class of settlement, though I was very fortunate in obtaining information from most reliable sources and observing some of them in various stages of development. The Premier, John Ballance, afforded me every facility in my researches.

The system of village settlement was brought into active operation in the year 1886, and was designed to relieve the crowded and congested state of the unemployed in the cities and large towns of New Zealand by setting apart various areas of land in different portions of the Colony, for the purpose of giving those for whom no employment was obtainable an opportunity of providing means of sustenance for themselves and families.

The following are the regulations:—

- (1.) The land to be held under these regulations shall be held on perpetual lease for the first term of thirty years, and for subsequent terms of twenty-one years, without any right of acquiring the freehold.
- (2.) The rental shall be based on the capital value of the land, which shall in no case be less than £1 per acre.
- (3.) No charge will be made for the lease, which shall be in the form of the schedule hereto, beyond the sum of 10s., for registering the same in the Land Transfer Department.
- (4.) No lease shall be issued until after the payment of the first year's rent. No transfer of the interest of a settler shall be allowed until the consent of the Commissioner of the Crown Lands has been first obtained.
- (5.) Renewals of lease shall be subjected in all respects to the provisions of sections 151 to 155 of part IV of the Land Act of 1885.
- (6.) Married men will have preference as selectors under these regulations.
- (7.) No allotment shall exceed in area 50 acres.
- (8.) An advance of a sum not exceeding £10 will be made to assist a selector in the erection of a house on his selection.
- (a) The erection of a dwelling-house must be completed within six months of the date of selection, and each settler must reside on his section within that time. In bush lands this may be deferred until one month after the first burn, but no longer.
- (b) In bush lands each settler must begin bush-felling immediately, but in any case where this is not done the steward shall report the circumstance to the Commissioner for Crown Lands for the district.
- (c) Those settlers who may desire an advance of £10 under this clause will obtain payment from the steward on his certificate that a dwelling-house of at least that value has been erected on the land.

(9.) The annual rent shall be 5 per cent. on the capital value of the land, together with 5 per cent. on such sum as may be advanced in terms of clause 8, payable half-yearly, on the first day of January or July next ensuing after the lapse of six months from the date of the selection and advances respectively. Provided that it shall not be necessary for any settler to pay any rent for the first two years from the date on which the rent is due as aforesaid. The unpaid two years' rent shall be added to the capital value of the land, and thereafter the rent will be payable on such increased capital value, or the settler may pay off the arrears of rent at any time.

(10.) All applications for land under these regulations shall be made to the Commissioner for Crown lands for the district. When more applications than one are made on the same day for the same land, the right to occupy the land applied for shall, subject to clause 6, be determined by lot among the applicants.

(11.) Each settler or transferee will be required to occupy his selection as his home, and to make substantial improvements, as required by clauses 12 and 13.

(12.) Each settler shall within two years cultivate 1 acre, and within four years the half of the remainder of his selection.

(13.) Substantial improvements shall mean:—

- (a) Fencing the land with timber or other durable materials, not being a brush fence, or be
- (b) Breaking up and laying down the same in English or other cultivated grass; or
- (c) Breaking up and planting or sowing root or other crops therein, and in case of bush lands, the felling and clearing of timber and sowing of grass.

(14.) Settlers shall not subdivide or sublet their holdings, but, with the consent of the Commissioner of Crown Lands for the District, they may transfer them, provided that all the conditions of these regulations have been fulfilled to date of application to transfer, and the two years' arrears of rent paid in full. No person who has an interest in any land of more than an acre in extent in the Colony shall be eligible as a selector under these regulations.

(15.) No settler shall hold more than one allotment, which shall be held for his sole use and benefit, and not for the use or benefit of any other person whomsoever. No married woman shall be eligible as a selector except as heir-at-law.

(16.) Any settler who shall fail to comply with these regulations in any respect shall, upon sufficient proof thereof to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, forfeit his interest in the land selected.

(17.) In case any doubt shall arise as to the construction of these terms and conditions with reference to the selection and occupation or clearing of any land, or otherwise arising thereunder, the same shall be settled by the Commissioner.

The scheme of Village Settlement was actively promoted when the present Premier, John Ballance, was Minister for Lands in a former administration, and he has never ceased to take a most intimate interest in its progress, and still exercises an ardent parental interest, coupled with a sound judgment, the result of six years' observation of the working of the Act, and as this period has elapsed it is not too early to ascertain the results which have attended placing the unemployed and people of the cities upon the soil, and, if successful, to see if the conditions are consonant with those which prevail in Australia.

In obtaining information upon this subject outside the official circle, it is singular to observe how diverse the opinions are that are expressed. Some informants will tell you that Village Settlements are universal successes, and others hold the very converse, but the ascertained facts are more natural, and do not touch either extreme.

At the inception of such a scheme there is always a danger of partial failure by persons plunging into it who are unused and utterly unacquainted with a settler's life, not possessing the experience that under ordinary circumstances would lead to success. It is also feared that in the early stages of a scheme such as this the attractive power of money, apparently so easily obtained, induced many to enter the lists, the necessity for patient, persevering industry being overlooked. And, again, many persons who failed in almost every other calling in the city migrated into districts at too great a distance from a market and settlement (without rail or even road communication), and from that encouragement and sympathetic help, needed in such cases to establish confidence, and to nourish that spirit of self-reliance essential for the complete success of a settler.

I was informed that Artisans and Shopmen, as well as Labourers (many of them having their passages paid to the settlements) found their way back to the town, while in other cases road construction was started, and also digging of Kauri gum, which is an article of commercial value. Considerable sums of money were also spent for road-making in the district, in order to afford the settler relief. The above experience will show conclusively that those who have failed in the city cannot be hurriedly placed upon the land where the conditions which lead to a successful rural occupation are lessened owing to the want of necessary experience. It is essentially necessary, therefore, that, to obtain success, judicious care should be exercised, not only in selecting the land, but the men, and this is also the opinion of those who have observed the system in active operation, otherwise temporary pressure may drive a number of men on to the land, only for the temporary relief that may be afforded. Such settlers must inevitably fail.

Several years ago a number of foreigners and other persons unfamiliar with rural life were conveyed to Jackson's Bay, Westland, South Island, and were placed in possession of holdings of from 10 to 70 acres, but were charged nominal rents only for the land. The Government built houses at the cost of £25 each, wholly relying for repayment upon public works which had to be started in order to support the men and their families, but there was such an error of judgment in selecting a site far removed from the railway, or a ready communication with the market, that there was no practicable outlet for the produce, and as the settlers were utterly ignorant of the work in their new condition, the experiment proved a costly failure.

At the Auckland or Northern end of North Island a large number of persons were seized with the desire to obtain land under the regulations of village settlement, and many of them plunged on to holdings that proved unsuitable both in quantity and position, the result being that out of 652 persons or families resident of Auckland who selected land at the village homestead settlement, only 433 remained, some of these, too, under the most trying circumstances.

But illustrations of the successful settlers are found. At Hawke's Bay, North Island, thirty-four families selected, and the same number are still in occupation, without any diminution of the holdings. At Mangahro, Hunterville, Pakentua, Hastwells, Mangatinoko, at the Wellington end of the Island, 130 persons selected, and the same number remain in possession. There

There were those who in the period of commercial depression which prevailed in New Zealand a few years ago, rushed out of towns like Auckland, where labour was far in excess of the demand, only to find that the battle for bread was severe, yet have realised that plodding industry has gained success, even under great trials and natural difficulties.

It has also been found that where the first crop of settlers has been defeated, either from want of knowledge, inexperience, or by some overwhelming difficulty, a better class of settler, of a sturdier, more temperate, more provident, and more capable character has taken their place, and I met several who had been resident in the towns, but whose entire interest had been transplanted to the homestead or district where they were dwelling; others who were clearing and orchard-planting their land in process of being transplanted to their country home. Moreover I was informed of very many cases of men who, in their former life as town workmen, found it exceedingly difficult to obtain work sufficient to keep their families, and are now in possession of land, growing all and more than they can consume, living in peace and comparative comfort.

When moving the second reading of the New Zealand Land Bill of 1879, Mr. Ralston, then Minister for Lands, and now leader of the Opposition, said, when submitting the special settlements section of the Bill:—"It was thought better to embody its provisions in this Bill, and that was, he believed, originally the intention of the late Government. The present Government and he (as Minister for Lands), believed most thoroughly that nothing was more important in a new land than settlement on the land by industrious farmers and small settlers. He would like to read a report which he knew from personal experience was a faithful picture of what had been the result of small farm settlements in the South Canterbury District under his own supervision."

The following were extracts from a report by the Immigration officer at Christchurch:—

"Neither the season of the year nor the number would have been of so much importance if the plan of settling the people in the country districts had been continued.

"In 1874-75 the system of forming village settlements was commenced, certainly on a small scale, but it worked admirably. The plan, shortly, was this: On the line of railway, or adjacent thereto, as at Tenuka, a reserve was laid off with sections, varying in size from one-half to 2 acres, allotted to each family after the cottage was built.

"In building these cottages or huts (as the walls are chiefly of sods) the plan adopted was this: The women and children remained on rations at the main depôt. The men were taken to the locality and built the huts under the direction and superintendence of a competent ganger, who was paid from 9s. to 10s. per day. The men had rations allowed them during the time they were building their huts, but nothing further."

"The average cost of the huts was £10 each, and the terms of occupation as follows:—First year, rent free; second and third years, a rental of 2s. per week. The rents paid into the Treasury exceed £500."

The report went on to say:—"Although at the present time there is a great deal of distress, and a large number of unemployed, I venture to assert that there is not one who is located in the manner I have stated amongst the unemployed."

When speaking in reference to the Village Homestead Special Settlement Association, Mr. Ralston said:—"One of these was to give a power of association to Working Men's Clubs and others to avail themselves of facilities for settlement together. There was no doubt that there was a very great advantage in people settling together, and being able to help each other in their various avocations. For the purposes of schools, police, roads, and all other purposes that affected the well being of the people as a community, it was very desirable that they should be brought together and have facilities for living together and in comfort, and with the power of taking advantage of those institutions which the State provided for the people as a whole. That, to his mind, was the advantage of bringing people together in village settlements." Further, he stated:—"There had been some instances of failure among special settlements, but he believed that was in consequence of insufficient caution in the selection of localities."

The most reliable persons that I interviewed upon this subject, were of opinion that considerable care is necessary in the first instance in selecting land for subdivision, and where it is desired for the unemployed, or those unaccustomed to the culture of crops, it should be selected in districts where bush and other work is obtainable, and where a market for produce is possible—with such conditions and with persevering industry success is almost a certainty. Experience has demonstrated where these conditions are wanting, and that to place a number of inexperienced men, or those unacquainted with the ordinary bushman's life and methods under adverse conditions is but to handicap them and increase the special difficulties which have to be fought, and which surround all new settlements in the initial stage; and further, the losses incurred at the very time when experience is being gained, are very often too heavy for the inexperienced settler, and he fails, defeated in an enterprise that should, without the disadvantage of a bad position or site for the settlement, have been the means of leading to a permanent establishment upon the land and an employer of labour.

In establishing districts for the inexperienced or unemployed, the value of placing one or two men sterling, practical, and experienced as a teaching power or help to those less experienced cannot, I am sure, be over-estimated, even if this help could only be obtained at the cost of some additional inducement or extra privilege such as by the establishment of State farms, where the youth might be instructed in agricultural pursuits, or by allowing these leaders some additional area, &c. An example of a well-kept, well managed farm would prove an important factor in the achievement of success in a settlement.

I was informed by the Premier, that the social change in the condition of those who availed themselves of the settlements, is most remarkable, from a spirit of dependence, that everywhere becomes more pronounced in the struggling populations of cities and larger towns. A new independent spirit is evoked, the demoralising, and too often the degraded influences of city life are left behind, a work of social amelioration is helped and largely assisted by the new, bright, and healthy condition of rural life. Promises of help, or social crutches, are no longer needed; self-respect, habits of thrift, and a bold spirit of self-reliance take their place. In other words, they desire no longer to be treated as children, but as strong free men, who are prepared to take their part in the social welfare of the community.

The Premier also informed me that it was the intention of the Government to resume blocks of land near the railway and sub-divide these for Village Settlement.

Settlements of this character have been made in the districts of Otago, Canterbury, Westland, Nelson, Taranaki, Auckland, and Wellington.

This is an advance report only. I purpose forwarding statistical information upon the subject at an early date.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE LEWIS.

Attention is invited to Appendix A, from which it will be seen that in twenty-two settlements within the province of Canterbury alone there are 166 settlers or families, each holding areas from 1 to 50 acres, totalling 5,217 acres 2 roods 11 perches. Towards these settlements Government have advanced £2,260, but it will be observed that the total value of improvements on these holdings amount to £10,665 7s. 6d.; and as the improvements are made on leased land, the security, it will be seen, is of a most excellent character.

APPENDIX A.

The following tabulated statement was obtained from the annual report of the Lands Department of New Zealand for the year ending 31st March, 1891, and furnishes a sketch of the village-homestead special settlement in twenty-two settlements within the province of Canterbury only.

From the return it will be seen that a total of 166 settlers or families have obtained land in areas ranging from 4 to 50 acres each. It will be observed that the total area taken up by the settlers is 5,217 acres 2 rood and 11 perches, and that the area under cultivation is 3,613 acres 3 roods and 2 perches.

It will also be seen that the total amount advanced by the Government is £2,260, and that the improvements effected amounted to £10,665 7s. 6d. Table also furnishes the rent, interest, arrears of rent, and interest, and the live stock existing on the holdings.

It should also be observed that the settlements, twenty-two in number, were formed in the years 1886 and 1887.

The District Government Officer to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Local Government Office, Sydney, 13 August, 1892.

I have now the honor to forward herewith, as promised in my advance report, the latest procurable official information in reference to village settlements in New Zealand, together with that part of the Land Bill now before the New Zealand Legislature referring thereto.

The Secretary for Lands and Surveyor-General writes as follows:—

"Special Settlement Associations and Village Homestead Lands."

"Allusion has already been made to the large number of applications received for blocks of land under the first of the above headings, which total 342,000 acres, representing 1,741 applicants, but the completed transactions for the year only number one block of 1,922 acres, selected by thirteen holders, making an average area of 147 acres to each. This is the Medbury Association in Canterbury, and the tenure is perpetual lease. The number of associations who have applied for land is forty-eight.

"The area proclaimed since the 31st March is nearly 100,000 acres, leaving a balance of about 142,000 acres to be proclaimed as soon as the law permits. The total number of such settlements in actual existence is twenty, with a total area of 82,465 acres, held 833 selectors. All of these (excepting Medbury), are held under the deferred payment system, and are most of them in the Wellington district.

"In company with the Commissioner for Crown Lands, I had an opportunity of seeing some of these settlements in March last, and observed with pleasure the amount of forest clearing that had been done, and the wisdom of some of the associations in taking advantage of the provisions of the loans to Local Bodies Act, by which means they had secured a considerable length of metalled roads.

"The applications for blocks of land for associations already referred to, have been so many in the Wellington district that there is a dearth of land left for further associations or for ordinary settlement, for which latter purpose, however, a considerable area was withheld from selection by the association. Indeed, it may be said that, with the exception of the Waimarino country, there is little land left in that district to deal with.

"Of village homestead special settlements, 140 selectors took up 2,213 acres on perpetual lease, all of whom are entitled under the regulations to advances of £10 towards the construction of a house. At the same time, thirty-three selections, containing an area of 1,081 acres, were forfeited for non-compliance with the condition.

"Altogether, the books of the Department now show 895 selectors under this system, holding 23,535 acres, on which has been advanced by the Government a sum of £22,383 5s. 8d."

The Superintendent of Village Settlements reports:—

Special Settlements.

Auckland.

Waimamaku Village-homestead Special Settlement and the Canterbury Association on Settlement Hokianga.

The number of original selectors there was 34, and the number now remaining is 17. Of the original 34 selectors, only 27 came to the district, and of these, 22 only were in actual occupation. Two of the original selectors took up land on other conditions. One was killed (a married man, whose widow returned to Auckland, and there died), the others obtained employment on the gum-fields, the 17 who are now in occupation are doing well, and will become permanent settlers; many of them have already acquired other lands in addition to their original holdings. Substantial school buildings have been erected, and 30 children are on the roll. I interviewed nearly all the settlers on their sections, and met a number of them in the school-room in the evening. All were contented with their land. The only complaint complaint made was the want of roads, on which subject I will report later. I also inspected the Canterbury settlement, and saw several of the settlers, who appeared perfectly satisfied with their holdings; and willing to struggle on in the hope of something being done to the roads in the near future, as at present they are precluded from taking any of their produce to a market owing to the bad state the roads are in. School-buildings have also been erected in this settlement, and at the time of my visit 35 children were on the roll, namely:—17 boys and 18 girls. From what I saw I am convinced that the settlers in both the Auckland and Canterbury settlements have had a very hard time of it, and have had to rough it in a way quite unknown in the South. They appear to have manfully overcome many difficulties, and it is satisfactory to note that many of them in both settlements are now building more substantial dwellings than at the first, and making other improvements. The land generally is good, and these settlements would, in my opinion, be in a fair and prosperous condition, provided good roads were constructed. I learn that inquiries respecting this land are now being made by a large number of intending selectors, principally from the south. The road known as the Pakanae-Waimamaku Road requires to be opened out as cart road, a distance of about 6 miles from Lett's store (section 18, Auckland settlement). This road would be a link to the main line through the Bay of Islands. A road is also very much needed in the Auckland Village Settlement, commencing from the school reserve, section 34, and thence to section 46.

Punakitere Settlement.

Number of original selectors, seventy-two. It should be observed that only forty-six actually went on the land; now remaining, twenty-two. Of the forty-six settlers who were in occupation, seventeen found employment in the surrounding districts, three were sent back to Auckland as being unsuitable, and four left the district. Of the twenty-two now in occupation twenty at least are likely to be good and permanent settlers.

Motukaraka and Kohukohu Settlements.

Number of original selectors, 63; now in occupation, 39; abandoned their holdings, 24. Of the 24 who abandoned their holdings 10 were natives who failed to comply with the conditions; 8 are unknown altogether, never having occupied the land; six abandoned their sections, but 4 of these, together with the natives are still in the district. Of the 39 in occupation, 5 have leave of absence for various periods, but they are working in the district. I have every reason to believe that fully 35 of the 32 present occupiers will become permanent settlers. A neat and substantial school-room has been erected, and also rooms for the teacher. At the time of my visit 22 children were on the roll, viz., 11 boys and 11 girls.

Swanson and Whitakeroi Settlements.

Number of original selectors, 23; number who actually went on the land, 20; now in occupation, 16. Of the 20 settlers who took up land and occupied it 3 sections have been abandoned, mainly on the ground that the land was very poor; and one has received notice to occupy the section or it will be declared forfeited. As this settlement is near Auckland, the sections now occupied are likely to remain so.

The two Te Aroha Settlements.

Number of original selectors, 39; number who actually went on the land, 29; now in occupation, 20; improved but not occupied, 7; forfeited, 2. The selectors of the 7 sections improved but not occupied, have had notice sent them that they must comply with the conditions, or the land will be forfeited. The rent is paid promptly. In some cases the improvements are considerable, but no advance has been made unless the selector was in occupation. The land selected for this settlement was a partly-drained swamp, and the settlers have laboured under great disadvantage to cultivate and improve their holdings. The outfall drain still requires further deepening. As my time was limited I obtained from Kavanagh the following particulars respecting certain settlements I was unable to inspect:—

Herekino Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 125. Of this number only 84 were in actual occupation, and the position of this settlement is as follows:—Number of original settlers, 94; now remaining 25; taken up land on other conditions, 7; abandoned their holdings, 62. The reasons assigned why so large a number left this settlement are as follows:—The locality for a special settlement was badly chosen, the district being quite isolated and offering no employment to outside labour. A large proportion of the people who applied for land in this settlement were quite unsuitable for settlers, and 31 never occupied the land at all.

From inquiries made, however, I gather that very few of the 62 settlers who abandoned their holdings returned to Auckland;—a large number of them finding employment on the gum-fields, which are about 40 miles distant from the settlement. Of the 25 settlers now remaining nearly the whole are likely to become permanent settlers; they have made substantial improvements to their holdings, and have formed a good opinion of the future prospects of the district, which will be realised as soon as the good land adjoining the settlement is opened up by roads.

Takahue Settlement.

Number of original selectors (who applied in Auckland for sections), 47; but of this number only 21 came to the district, and of these, 12 only are in occupation. The remaining 9 are accounted for as under:—

One settler, a single man, went to England, 1 to an engagement near Wellington, 1 to employment at Auckland, 3 obtained work in the district, 1 resides with her father in the settlement, and relinquished her section; 2 went to Sydney. Ten out of the 12 settlers now in occupation are doing well, and are perfectly satisfied with their future prospects.

Fern Flat Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 15; number who actually went on the land, 11; now remaining, 9. Of the 11 settlers originally in occupation, one relinquished his section through ill-health; the other settler was accidentally drowned. The 9 now remaining are likely to become permanent settlers, although the land is very broken and not of first-class quality.

Akatea and Firewood Creek Settlements.

Number of original selectors, 27 ; number who actually went on the land, 18 ; now in occupation, 13. Of the 18 settlers who took up sections, 3 did so in order that they might participate in the road work, they made very little improvements to their holdings, and no advance was made.

Two others did certain improvements, for which advances were made to the amount of £17 10s., but both these sections have been since taken up under the Act of 1887, and the money advanced more than recovered.

Komakorau Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 5 ; number who went on the land, 5 ; now in occupation, 4. Of the 5 who took up land in this settlement, 4 are in occupation, and the other has been called on to occupy his section, or the land may be forfeited: I should add that this settler lost his wife ; he was left with two children, and was obliged to seek employment elsewhere to pay for their maintenance. Under these circumstances, every facility will be granted to allow the settler to comply.

Drury Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 7 ; number who actually went on the land, 5 ; now in occupation, 4. Of the 5 who went on the land, 4 remain in actual occupation ; the other section is improved, the selector lives in a Government cottage on the railway line. The two unoccupied sections have been taken up by the present settlers, who are likely to remain there. The land is poor open fern, but the settlers find occasional employment in the district.

Hukerenui Settlement.

Number of original selectors, who applied at the Land Office, Auckland, 82 ; but of this number, only 38 occupied sections. Many of the others applied for land to give them the right to dig gum in Puhipuhi. Of the 38 selectors, 3 surrendered their holdings, but have again acquired them under other conditions. No advances were made on these sections. One improved section was abandoned, but it will be taken up as soon as it is opened for selection, and most of the money advanced will be recovered.

Motatau Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 11 ; number who went on the land, 7. Of the original 11 selectors, 3 have acquired land in the district on other conditions. The 7 now in occupation are likely to remain there and become permanent settlers.

Whananaki Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 36 ; but of this number only 21 came on the land, and 18 now remain in occupation, and are likely to continue. Of the 3 forfeited sections, 2 have been acquired under other conditions by persons in the district ; no advance was made on these sections. The amount advanced on the other is expected to be recovered as soon as the land is open for selection. The original selector has acquired a larger area of land in the district.

Omaha Settlement.

Number of original selectors, 38 ; number who went on the land, 32 ; now in occupation, 26. Of the 32 settlers who were in occupation, 6 have abandoned their holdings. Advances have been made on all the abandoned sections ; 4 of these have been re-selected under other conditions, and the greater part of the advance recovered. The settlers now in occupation are doing fairly well, although the land is very poor.

Parua Bay and Pataua Settlements.

Number of original selectors, 23 ; number who went on the land, 16 ; now in occupation, 10 ; of the 6 forfeited sections, 3 have been taken up and the advances recovered ; there will be a loss on two of the others. The land in this district is very poor and broken ; but the settlers now in occupation are likely to remain, as they can obtain gum digging and other occasional employment.

The total number of sections occupied under village homestead special settlement conditions is 282, but this does not include certain sections about to be forfeited at Hertkino, Takahue, and Fern Flat.

A very pleasing feature in connection with the settlements is the public schools established therein. Substantial school buildings have been erected ; the attendance is good ; the children neat, clean, and attentive, and looking the picture of health. The want of fairly good roads is, and has been, a great drawback to the success of the settlements, and this, no doubt, has been the main cause why so many sections have been given up. The settlers are now anxiously looking forward to some immediate steps being taken to improve the roads, in order that they may be able to bring their produce to market. Taking into consideration the great difficulties the settlers in the north have had to contend with, owing to the isolated position in which many of the settlements were placed, the delay in bringing bush lands under cultivation, and the want of roads, I think it may fairly be said that the progress made up to the present is very satisfactory.

Hawke's Bay District.

In this district the total number of settlers is 31, and the area allotted, 203 acres, or an average of nearly 7 acres each. The sum advanced for houses, bush felling, &c., was £318 ; rent and interest has been paid to the amount of £397 4s., and the arrears are only £3 5s. 6d. ; all the settlers are doing fairly well.

Wellington District.

The number of village-homestead special settlers in this district is 207, the area they occupy 2,678 acres, or an average of about 13 acres each ; the amount paid for rent and interest was £1,816 ; and the arrears on the 31st March, £264. The settlers generally are doing well, and I have no doubt the arrears will shortly be paid.

Canterbury District.

Twenty-four village-homestead special settlements have been established in this district ; the number of settlers is 172 ; the area allotted 5,532 acres ; the amount advanced for houses, £2,280. Rent and interest have been paid to the amount of £2,808 ; and the arrears on the 31st March were £362. The settlers generally are doing well.

Otago District.

The village-homestead special settlers in Otago number 107, and hold an area of 1,706 acres, or an average of nearly 16 acres each. The amount advanced for houses, bush-felling, &c., was £1,383. Payments to the amount of £184 have been made for rent and interest; and the arrears amount to £44. The settlers generally are doing very well.

Southland District.

In this district, 65 settlers hold 673 acres under village-homestead special settlement conditions. £1,074 was advanced for houses, fencing, bush-felling, &c. Rent and interest to the amount of £604 has been paid. The arrears on the 31st March were £19 14s. 1d., which will shortly be paid. The settlements would be far more prosperous than they are if a little attention could be given to the formation of roads; especially is this the case at Seaward Bush, where some of the settlers have not access to their sections, and are thus unable to dispose of the timber on the land. The settlers generally, however, are doing well. I was interested in a case of a selector who is over sixty years of age, single, and holds 14 acres of land. He told me that he was advised not to take up any land, but to apply for admission to the Old Men's Home. He, however, had courage, and was determined to try and do his best, with the result that he is able to maintain himself, and is doing fairly well. Under the village-homestead system others may go and do likewise.

J. E. MARCH,
Superintendent of Village Settlements.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands reports:—

Auckland.

Fourteen sections, containing 670 acres, have been relinquished or abandoned during the past year. Twelve village settlers have added 1,543 acres to their present holdings, and 4 past village settlers have selected 302 acres under ordinary settlement conditions, and one of them has taken up 270 acres under the homestead system, making a total of 602 acres, whilst 8 abandoned village sections containing 379 acres have been selected by 6 outsiders on ordinary settlement conditions. Two sections, each 50 acres, in the Parnell endowment, Punakitere, were selected under the amended village settlement regulation by the sons of a village settler. Stock has increased in all the settlements, the numbers now being 318 horses, 605 cows, 535 calves, 62 working bullocks, 963 sheep, 440 pigs, and 2,462 head of poultry. The amount advanced for the nine months was £388 13s. 9d. This sum does not equal the amount of improvements, as many settlers have not drawn advances, although they have improved their holdings considerably. At Te Aroha, for instance, no advance was made or solicited beyond £20 for a dwelling-house. During the period considerable progress has been made, especially in fencing, ditching, and outbuildings, the weak point being cultivation. This, with the majority of village settlers, is effected by spade work, and is consequently slow and limited. A noticeable characteristic of the village settler is his eagerness to acquire more land. All the unallotted and forfeited sections worth having have been taken up in most of the settlements, especially in those south of the Bay of Islands. There is less demand for sections in the northern settlement, owing to the almost entire absence of roads, the want of which is deeply felt in winter. In conclusion, I may say the progress made is very satisfactory.

Hawke's Bay.

This settlement was formed in June, 1837, and is situate on the main road, about 1 mile south of the town of Woodville. Its extent was 112 acres, divided into lots varying from 1 acre near the road to 8 acres at the back. At the time of selection nearly the whole was covered with forest, the acre sections fronting the main road being the exception. In 1887 the settlers numbered 29, 2 of whom have since forfeited their selections, which have been disposed of under other systems, leaving 27 as the present number of holdings, with a total of 102 acres. Of these 12 are held by the original selectors, the balance by transferees. Rather over four years has elapsed since the land was taken up, and a flourishing settlement, with good houses, gardens, orchards, and grass paddocks, has taken the place of unproductive forest. It needs but a visit to become convinced of its success, and that it is in many respects a model settlement, fulfilling its intended purposes. Its proximity to Woodville, with its mills and other industries, has been greatly in its favour, although in several instances the head of the family works at bush-felling or road work some distance away, only coming home at the end of the week. As a proof of the industry of these people, the value of the improvements that have been put on the land during four years is between £3,000 and £4,000, of which only £793 15s. 9d. has been advanced by the Government. Whilst the whole of the twenty-seven settlers have done well, the following are, I think, the most noticeable:— On section 5, good substantial house, out-houses, shelter trees, garden, &c., of a value of about £250. Section 9, with a pretty little cottage and well-kept garden; improvements about £100. Section 29, a holding of 5 acres, laid down in good grass, orchard, garden, and a good house; value of improvements, £200. Section 30, orchard, garden, and substantial house, with 7 acres fenced in and in grass; value of improvements, £200. After the foregoing it is needless to say that all and more than the required improvements have been effected. The rents and interest on advances are very regularly paid, and at the present time only two are a half-year's payment in arrears. There appeared to be a great desire on the part of some of the settlers to acquire the freehold, but I gave them no encouragement. I think such a concession would be a mistake, at any rate, for some years to come.

Waipawa Small-farm Association (deferred payment), Block 13, Norsewood Survey District.

This association, composed of thirty-three members, was formed in November, 1885, and selected on deferred payment 3,221 acres of the Umutooroa Block, in the vicinity of Danvirke. Its location is most favourable, stretching as it does from the railway station at Mangateroa back to the foot of the Ruahine ranges. The land is more suitable for dairying and sheep than agriculture, being mainly a light soil, but carrying good grass. It was at the time of selection covered with forest. Six years have elapsed since the selection, and the present holdings number twenty-eight, two selectors having, by means of transfer, transfer, acquired a second section, and another a third, the largest holding in the settlement being 255 acres. Of the twenty-eight now in possession, nine are original selectors; the other nineteen are transferees. Six of the former and one of the latter have acquired the freehold. The weak point in the settlement is the number of non-residents, there being no less than seventeen out of the twenty-eight holders. Six out of the seven who have acquired the freehold are on the ground, so that six only of the twenty-four still holding on deferred payment are resident. Those living on their selections complain to me of absenteeism, one of the reasons being that owing to the population being so sparse they are unable to get a school, and the children in some cases at the back are growing up untaught.

Considerable improvements have been effected on the block. One-third is in grass, besides an additional 700 acres felled. Unfortunately, the last two seasons have been very bad for burns, which has been a great drawback to the settlers not only in this locality but throughout the district. There are fourteen dwellings of all shapes and sizes, ranging in value from £3 to £100, and a good deal of fencing. The total value of all the improvements made during the six years is £5,889—about £1 16s. 6d. an acre. Only one of the residents is in arrears with the improvements, but sixteen out of seventeen absentees are so, mainly on account of the double improvement requirements, which I am insisting upon. There is not nearly the amount of stock that one would expect to find, but on inquiries I learnt that this is likely to be remedied during the coming year, as a number are going to put on sheep. The main road is gravelled. Altogether, of the 13 miles of road which practically serves both this and the Danevirke Settlement, 7 miles are formed and gravelled, 1 mile is being formed, the remainder is felled, with road track cleared, and in fair condition for bush roads. On the whole, the settlement may be considered a success. The residents are, apparently, hard-working and industrious, and the non-residents have made extensive improvements, far beyond what would have been required had they lived on their selections, and none are in arrears with their payments.

Danevirke Small-farm Association (deferred payment), Block XIII, Norsewood Survey District.

This settlement was formed in November, 1885, and is located near the township of the same name. Its situation was favourable on account of its proximity to the railway line, its nearest point being about half-a-mile from Mangatera station. It is level country, well watered, and was, at the time of selection, covered with forest. The association at the outset consisted of twenty-five members, who selected as many sections, comprising in all 1,900 acres. The results at the end of six years are very satisfactory, and the settlement must be considered an undoubted success. Five of the original twenty-five have acquired the freehold, four of whom are permanent residents, with good substantial residences. In a few cases settlers have acquired additional sections by transfer, so that the actual holdings at the present time are nineteen in number, twelve of whom are personally resident, and two others by substitutes. The houses, of which there are fourteen, are of a good class, with many excellent gardens and young orchards, the whole surroundings suggestive of comfort and prosperity. Of the 1,900 acres in the settlement, more than half is in cultivation, and a further area felled, but not burnt, owing to the bad burning season. The value of improvements effected is £4,350, an average of £2 5s. an acre on the total area of the settlement, including the unimproved land. Only two of the selectors are in arrear with their payments, one of them having suffered lately through the burning down of his house. This settlement is unquestionably a success, and has, I judge, fulfilled, if not exceeded, the most sanguine expectations, proving that under ordinary favourable conditions moderate-sized areas can be advantageously and profitably occupied. It is gratifying to find that up to the present there is no tendency, either in this or the Waipawa settlement, to the land being absorbed by a few. Where the freehold has been acquired, the settlers are resident, and with every appearance of continuing to do so. Anyway, after an interval of six years, the two are practically as much small-farm settlements, and, in fact, more so, than at their initiation.

THOMAS HUMPHRIES,
Commissioner of Crown Lands.

There are various schemes of Village Settlement in Victoria, but I have not reported on them, not having been instructed to do so. My report of the 14th July concerning the Department of Industry refers to that class of Village Settlement which has been promoted for the employment of labour under the co-operative system.

I have, &c.,

APPENDIX B.

From Land Bill now before the New Zealand Legislature.

Part 4.

Special Settlement Associations.

Governor may set apart blocks of rural land for special settlement. And may fix terms and conditions of occupation.

161. The Governor, by proclamation in the Gazette, may from time to time set apart such blocks of rural land as he shall think fit, and declare the same open for special settlement, and may from time to time alter, amend, or revoke any such proclamation.

162. The Governor-in-Council may from time to time make, alter, and repeal regulations fixing the terms and conditions upon which the lands in any special settlement shall be disposed of on perpetual lease, but subject in every case to the following rules:—

- (1.) The price of land in a special settlement shall be fixed by valuation, not being less than ten shillings per acre.
- (2.) The rental thereof on perpetual lease shall not be less than four per centum on such price, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by regulations.
- (3.) Residents, occupation, and permanent improvements of the land shall be in accordance with Part 3 of this Act.
- (4.) Neither the whole nor any part of any block of land shall continue set aside as a special settlement for a period of more than three years from the date of the proclamation setting aside the same; but every contract made with respect to any such block, or any part thereof, whilst the same remains so set aside, shall be performed, notwithstanding that the block has ceased to be so set aside.

The provisions of this section shall apply and be deemed to have applied to all lands disposed of as special settlements under the regulations contained in two Orders in Council, dated respectively the 27th day of February and the 15th day of December, 1891, as if the said provisions had been specially incorporated in such regulations respectively at the date thereof.

Block of rural land may be set apart for occupation on co-operative system.

163. A block of 5,000 acres may be set apart to be owned and worked on co-operative principles. The Governor-in-Council may, from time to time, make, alter, and repeal, regulations for fixing terms and conditions upon which this land shall be occupied.

Settlements formed under the "Land Act, 1885" by regulations of 5th December, 1885, deemed subject to that Act.

164. It is hereby declared that the provisions relating to the deferred payment and perpetual lease systems respectively contained in parts 3 and 4 of the "Land Act, 1885," shall apply and be deemed to have applied to all lands disposed of as special settlements under the regulations contained in an Order in Council, dated the 5th day of December, 1885, or any amendment of the said regulations made before the 27th day of February, 1891, as if the said provisions had been specially incorporated in such regulations respectively at the date thereof.

Unoccupied lands in former settlements may be disposed of otherwise.

165. All lands within any special settlement block formed before the commencement of this Act which, at the expiration of two years from the same being set aside, have not been taken up on the conditions of such settlement, may be notified as open for application under Part 3 of this Act.

Village Settlements.

Governor may set apart Crown lands for village settlements.

166. The Governor, by proclamation in the Gazette, may, from time to time, set apart and declare open for sale as village settlements, such blocks or allotments of Crown Lands as he shall think fit.

And may fix terms and conditions of occupation.
